If Germany Goes Bolshevist Telephone Word Scrambling

The President "Envisions" Re-enter Dr. Einstein

— By Arthur Brisbane —

BEARS IN WALL STREET enjoyed themselves yesterday and the public learned about the importance of Germany's stability, even here in our stock gambling.

A rumor of revolution in Berlin was spread and refused to die.

German reparations bonds dropped sharply. American stocks fell off from 1 to 31 points.

The world's "best minds" in this country, particularly, will realize that the Versailles treaty, imposing on Germany brutal, financial slavery, was not as wise as it sounded in the beginning.

Those that said, "Let the Germans pay, they lost," would not be so cheerful if they saw Germany driven into Bolshevism.

Germany and Russia, both Bolshevistic, on the east, would make financial Europe on the west tremble for good reasons.

The Dutch Telephone Company, between The Hague and the Dutch East Indies, tries experiments in "scrambled" conversation.

That news will interest Mrs. Ruth McCormick, who says a Senate committee tapped her wire. It wouldn't do any good to tap the new telephone system in question.

The sending instrument transforms words into an entirely unintelligible jargon, while the instrument, connected with the ear of the receiver, puts them back into plain language.

The illegal listener-in would hear, for instance, this jumble, "Trup Janobkansep," and the legitimate listener would get the message, "Jones is bankrupt." Each letter of the real message appears in "Trup Janobkansep."

Mr. Gilbert, who knows sometimes what goes on in Washington, says President Hoover, awaiting a report by his dry law commission, "won't countenance repeal, but envisions modification." The fact that he doesn't countenance repeal makes no difference, for it would be impossible to repeal the amendment. Seventeen states can prevent it, and more than seventeen are "dry forever."

The use of the word "envisions" is something of which President Hoover was not guilty, needless to say.

Our crime wave is bad enough, without butchering the English language.

It would be interesting to know just what kind of modification the President "envisions," also what his "reaction" is on the "mass psychology" produced by wholesale and retail bootlegging, murder, racketeering and all-around devility.

Mr. Einstein reappears on the front page to tell you that space is "only a theory representing a non-reality." Perhaps he never bumped his head, in the dark, and hit the door, when space suddenly came to an end.

He sends the Prussian Academy of Science a new treatise on the "theory of space conception, with Riemann metrics and extended parallelism."

You must concentrate a little when you read that. Professor Einstein says:

"Maybe people will think I am a fool when they read it."

They will not, and on the other hand, they need not blame themselves for not understanding Dr. Einstein's "non-continuous conceptions of space, to which there are more than three dimensions, and where, in spite of Euclid, parallel lines, prolonged to infinity, actually do meet."

You may say that, if two lines meet somewhere in Professor Einstein's unlimited, unreal and desolate space, they are not "parallel." But who are you, to argue with Einstein?

T. M. Zink, of Iowa, who hated women, leaves $40,000, to be held in trust for 75 years. When the estate amounts to $3,000,000, a library will be built, with this sign carved in stone:

"No woman admitted."

And he will only allow books written by men to be kept in the library.

That would leave out Uncle Tom's Cabin, the Bells, Lives of the Republic, the letters of Madame De Sevigne, interesting fragments of Sappho, and, indirectly, the books by men that amount to anything, since such books are usually inspired by women.

Mr. Zink's idea is particularly foolish, because what brains men have are formed during a period of nine months before they are born.

And the brain created during that period depends on the brain of the mother, . . on her THINKING before the baby's birth.

CONG. TILSON RENOMINATED FOR 12TH TERM

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 20 (AP)—Congressman John Q. Tilson, Republican floor leader, today was renominated for the 12th time at the Third Congressional District convention here. He served as congressman-at-large 1909 to 1913 and since 1915 has represented the Third District.

THREE UNIVERSITIES WIN PEACE MEDALS

Washington, Sept. 20 (INS)—The annual congress of Fidac, the Inter-Allied Veterans' Association, today presented medals to three universities for their work in promoting peace. The universities honored are Columbia, New York city; University of California and University of Chicago.

18 MEN FEARED LOST IN PACIFIC

Portland, Ore., Sept. 20 (INS)—Hope faded today for the lives of 18 men believed to have perished in the wreck of the wooden steam schooner South Coast off the southern Oregon coast. Nevertheless, the coast guard cutters Cahokia and Redwing continued their search.

POLICE CHIEF TURNS EDITOR FOR A DAY

AUSTRALIA URGES NEW ARMS PARLEY

Geneva, Sept. 20 (AP)—Premier James H. Cullin of Australia, making his first appearance before the League of Nations Assembly late today, denounced armaments as a menace to peace and urged the League to call a general disarmament conference soon.

FRANCO-ITALIAN WAR 'NEAR'

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—Representative Fred A. Britten, chairman of the committee on naval affairs, returned today on the Leviathan from a two months' tour of Central Europe with the statement:

"Europe is more precariously poised today than it was in 1912, two years before the World War."

"It would be an exaggeration to say that war clouds are hanging over Europe," Mr. Britten said, "but to predict that armaments and war preparations will be increased rather than diminished in the near future is but a logical conclusion when one understands the distrust the various nations over there have for each other."

He said the French army maneuvers on the Italian border and the fleet demonstration at Toulon, directly overlooking Italy, "were nothing more nor less than deliberate answers to the constant rattling of Mussolini's sword."

"When the big explosion comes," Mr. Britten said, "and it is but a matter of time, there will be an immediate realignment which will again involve most of Europe. The United States will never again actively participate in a European war, except in defense of its own honor."

CANNON FACES NEW CHARGES

Richmond, Va., Sept. 20 (AP)—Dr. Coston J. Harrell, pastor of a Methodist church here, announced today new charges against Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, have been forwarded to Bishop William N. Ainsworth of Birmingham, Ala., chairman of the college of bishops of the church.

No announcement of the nature of the charges was made.

The complaint against Bishop Cannon was signed by Dr. Harrell, Dr. I. P. Martin of Abingdon, Va., Dr. J. T. Marsten of Richmond, and Dr. Forrest J. Prettyman of Baltimore.

Dr. Harrell issued a brief statement announcing the complaint today concerning the matter but declined to supplement it in any way.

King Gillette Is Reported Improved

Los Angeles, Sept. 20 (INS)—Reports that King C. Gillette, safety razor inventor, was near death in the mansion home of his son, King C. Gillette, Jr., near Calabasas, Calif., were denied by the manufacturer's son today. Young Gillette said his father was recuperating from an operation performed two months ago.

HEALTH BALKS LIPTON VISIT TO BOSTON

Noted Sportsman to Spend Week in New York Before His Return to Britain

Newport, Sept. 20—Sir Thomas Lipton's health will prevent him from accepting Boston's invitation to participate in the Tercentenary, his secretary announced today.

For the same reason he will be forced to forego the pleasure of renewing his friendship with former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, who is also ill at Buzzards Bay, Mass.

The Irish baronet will leave at daybreak tomorrow for New York where he will spend a week before going back to England.

At luncheon today with Mayor Mortimer H. Sullivan and State Senator William H. Reed, Sir Thomas was presented a silver cup by the city of Newport, old stone hall.

His defeated America's cup challenger, Shamrock V, was taken in tow today for the Herreshoff yards at Bristol, where she will be put up temporarily and perhaps for the winter.

Sir Thomas Lipton advised Mayor Curley by telegram today that he regretted his health prevented him from accepting the invitation to participate in Boston's Tercentenary observance.

John F. Fitzgerald, after 10 days in Robert Breck Brigham Hospital, left yesterday for a rest period at his summer home in Buzzards Bay.

Cash Pours in to Buy Cup for Lipton

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—Will Rogers started something when he suggested Americans give a dollar each to purchase a loving cup for Sir Thomas Lipton, five times an unsuccessful challenger for the America's cup, premier of yachting trophies.

Major Walker, suggested by Rogers as custodian of the fund, has received more than a hundred letters today containing contributions, and more were coming in every mail.

The office of Barron G. Collier, the Mayor's fishing companion, named as treasurer of the fund, also was receiving contributions today but no total had been made, and several New York newspapers were getting contributions.

Enterprise Crew May Sail Shamrock Home

Providence, R. I., Sept. 20 (AP)—Some members of the champion American yacht Enterprise may form part of the crew of the Lipton yacht Shamrock V if the latter vessel is sailed back to England.

A number of members of the Shamrock's crew prefer to return to England by steamer and an equal number of the Enterprise's crew have been asked to take their places. Eight have responded favorably, it was reported today at Bristol.

Whitely Peterson, the only Bristol, R. I., sailor on the Enterprise crew during the cup races, said today he had been engaged for the trip.

Fitzgerald Sorry Lipton Can't Come Here

John F. Fitzgerald, now resting at Pleasure Bay, Wareham, today expressed keen disappointment that Sir Thomas Lipton would not be able to come to Boston.

Fitzgerald said he had tried to reach Sir Thomas by wire and telephone today to invite him to Pleasure Bay but had failed.

As for himself, he said he was taking a complete rest. Today, accompanied by his grandchildren, he went for a sail. Later, he plans to do some bluefishing.

BOY GETS LIFE IN GIRL DEATH

Morristown, N. J., Sept. 20 (AP)—Harry Woolsey, 15, slayer of a domestic servant in his parents' household, was sentenced today to life in State's prison.

The lad, who looks much older than his years, was indicted for murder in July of Anna Miller of Scranton, Pa., his companion on a walking trip over Green Pond Mountain. He did not plead to the indictment today, his counsel pointing out the boy was said by four alienists to be suffering from dementia praecox. He will be taken to prison Monday but indications were he would be sent to a hospital for the insane.

Herter's Victory Pleases Hoover

Washington, Sept. 20 (UB)—Many of President Hoover's associates and former associates were pleased today by word from Boston that Christian Herter has won a Republican nomination for State Representative from the Beacon Hill district.

Herter was the first to serve as secretary to Mr. Hoover when the latter became Secretary of Commerce in 1921. He held this post for several years before resigning to enter magazine publishing.

WOMAN SAYS GEMS WERE STOLEN OR LOST

Mrs. H. Courtlandt Van Voorhis Starts a Wide Hunt Here for Jewels

Loss of a $10,000 pearl necklace with diamond clasp in downtown Boston or Back Bay was reported to police today by Mrs. H. Courtlandt van Voorhis of Beacon st. and Manchester-by-the-Sea.

Mrs. Van Voorhis, who made her report to police of Station 16, Back Bay, said she did not know whether the pearls had slipped from her neck or had been stolen.

The necklace has 119 matched pearls, she said, and while worth approximately $10,000 in the market was valued many times more highly because it had been a gift.

Police officials immediately assigned inspectors and special officers to check up at pawnshops, headquarters of taxicab companies and lost and found departments of stores, and flashed a description of the gems over the teletype.

Mrs. van Voorhis said she came to Boston from her summer home on Central st., Manchester, on Thursday, arriving at North station by train and taking a taxicab to the stores to do some shopping.

She did not notice that her necklace was missing until she reached home, but a careful investigation convinced her the loss did not occur in Manchester or on the train, but that the pearls were lost or stolen during the time she spent in Boston.

From her summer home at Manchester Mrs. Van Voorhis said she valued the necklace highly as a gift from her husband. They are of oriental pearls, she said, the money value of which is far below the esteem in which she held them.

Nowhere on her trip from the North Station was she out of sight, she said, with the exception of her trips through the stores. She couldn't remember any incident of jostling or otherwise that she could connect with an attempt to steal it.

'Flo' Ziegfeld Hurt as Trolley Hits Auto

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—Florenz Ziegfeld, musical comedy producer, escaped with a bruised forehead today when his new imported town car was bumped by a surface car at 230th st. and Broadway, the Bronx.

He was on his way home to Hastings, N. Y., in his car, purchased only a few hours earlier, when his chauffeur stopped to make a turn. The trolley car struck it from the rear.

Six Families Flee Blaze in Brighton

Six families were driven out today as fire swept along the wooden tenement house extending from 184 to 190 North Beacon st., Brighton. The fire, which is believed to have started from a defective flue, caused damage estimated at $1500.

LIQUOR RUNNERS OPERATE COASTAL CHAIN OF RADIO STATIONS

RAID BARES WORKINGS OF RING

Rum Craft Off Coast Flashed Orders by Air From the Illicit Radio Plants

A chain of powerful short wave length radio broadcasting stations operated by a rum ring working out of Boston is being sought out today by a small army of federal agents as a result of the raid yesterday on a radio station in New Bedford.

Two men were taken at the South Cove station and a complete sending and receiving outfit was seized, but this station is believed to be only one of many that the rum running outfit maintains along the New England coast.

The stations are believed to be in constant communications with rum ships off the coast, notifying them as to the time and place that their cargoes can be landed.

COAST GUARD ON JOB

Early today Coast Guard vessels set out from Wood's Hole in Buzzard Bay on a mysterious voyage, and it was understood that they were acting on "ups" regarding the location of other radio stations.

After the seizure yesterday of a powerful short-wave receiving and sending radio set in a tenement house on McGurk st., New Bedford, sleuths of the Department of Justice were despatched to every coast city from the Cape to Portland, Me.

Undercover agents of the government are said to have discovered evidence that these radio stations are located at intervals of 50 miles along the entire New England coast.

ON TRAIL FOR WEEKS

For many weeks the agents of the department of justice have been shadowing the so-called Boston "Rum Ring." Their first real break came yesterday when they raided the tenement in New Bedford, they arrested Manuel Carpentar of Fairmont st., Boston, and Joseph Travaras of New Bedford, both of whom were later held under bonds of $4000 each on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act.

While federal officials today refused to issue any statements it was indicated that more arrests were expected before the end of the day.

Mrs. McCormick is not the only Ruth "amid the alien corn" of politics.

Mrs. Ruth Pratt, of New York, now in Congress, is running for another term, and will probably get it.

She represents energetically the two familiar lines:

"First, then, a woman will or won't, depend on't.

"If she will do't, she will, and there's an end on't."

At present, her mind is on beating a Socialist candidate, Heywood Broun, tall and stately as a redwood tree, and her more serious competitor, the Democrat.

It "nazes others in politics to see how Mrs. Pratt works, ringing doorbells, according to yesterday's report, saying t her fellow citizens, male and female:

"I want to represent you in Congress, you're entitled to know what I think. Ask me."

Mrs. Pratt began as alderman in New York, and surprised the masculine menial giants that surrounded her by telling them that they were "so many rubber stamps," which was marvelously accurate.

Gandhi, 62 years old yesterday, spent the morning writing, making cloth on his small hand loom in the afternoon.

His remedy for India's troubles is to make cloth by hand, to hurt Britain's trade, and passive disobedience to Britain's rule.

How far will that get 300,000,000 inhabitants of India, with Afghans on the north, eagerly waiting a chance to order them, and 60,000,000 Mohammedans living in India, also hoping for an opportunity to el minate Hindus?

A marvelously sincere, earnest, self-starving little man is Gandhi. But something else is needed for the problem that confronts him.

OUSTED CHIEF VANISHES

Central Falls, R. I., Sept. 20 (INS)—Former Acting Chief of Police Samuel J. Healey has mysteriously vanished, it was announced at police headquarters this afternoon.

After Chief James McCarthy was suspended Aug. 6 while under fire over charges that speakeasies were in operation, Healey was made acting chief. However, by court order McCarthy was reinstated yesterday.

A New England-wide search has been launched for Healey. The only clue was a statement by a policeman that he overheard Healey say he was "disgusted with the whole thing."

McCarthy was suspended by Mayor St. George when the chief was alleged to have failed to heed the mayor's warning to "close up the speakeasies and the vice dens," 70 of which were listed by the mayor.

Before McCarthy resumed his post, Healey was served with a court order ousting him and reinstating McCarthy. Since yesterday Mrs. Healey has tried without success to find her husband.

Noone Seeks N. H. Democratic Recount

Concord, N. H., Sept. 20—Albert W. Noone, 84-year-old Democratic nominee for the United States Senator, has formally asked for a recount in the Democratic gubernatorial primary contest. Noone sought both nominations and was beaten by only 300 votes in the gubernatorial contest by Fredeic E. Small of Rochester.

SALTER THANKS FORBES FOR GIFT

Mayor Reuben Salter of Boston, England, and others of his party called on President Allan Forbes at the State St. Trust Co. today to thank him for his efforts in raising more than $50,000 toward restoration of the tall tower of St. Botolph's Church in the English city.

After spending an interesting hour inspecting Forbes' antiques and other objects d'art, they left the bank, some to go on a shopping tour for gifts for the folks at home, and others on a short motor trip to historic points.

Afterwards the visitors plunged into a whirlwind week-end of pleasure of the same sort that has so taxed their energy that, although elated with the glorious time they have had, they are cutting short their Boston visit this week-end.

Instead of staying another week, as planned, the party breaks up tomorrow, when four members sail for home. These are Deputy Mayor Arthur Bailey, Mrs. Bailey, Councilor James Tait and George Robinson, a newspaperman. They are sailing from East Boston on the Cunard liner Laconia.

Mayor Salter and Councilor Jabez Holland Mountain will go to New York Monday to remain until the 26th, when they will sail for home.

After luncheon today all were entertained by a musical and gymnastic exhibition on the Common, after which they were to go to Braves Field for their first baseball game, guided by Standish Wilcox, Mayor Curley's social secretary.

At 6:30 this evening comes a banquet tendered by the Order of the Sons of St. George at the Hotel Brunswick. Fireworks either at the Strandway or Charles River basin are on the program later. Tomorrow will likewise be a busy day.

LIQUOR-LADEN BOAT SEIZED

New London, Ct., Sept. 20 (AP)—Laden with liquor, the 50-foot speed boat May B. of New York was seized by coast guard patrol boat CG-288 today when hard aground in Block Island sound, off Long Island shore, near Montauk Point. The crew escaped.

It was estimated there were 300 sacks of liquor aboard. This was to be surrendered with the vessel to customs officials at New York later today.

Coast guards believe the May B had made contact with a larger vessel and probably was making for some bay in Long Island to discharge the cargo.

DIES IN FIRE IN STOUGHTON

Exeter, N. H., Sept. 20 (AP)—William Lacavita of Stoughton, Mass., was burned to death, it was discovered today, in a fire that destroyed the barn and home of Leroy Meekins of Exeter last night.

After Lacavita's body was found in the barn cellar, Meekins was detained by police, pending arrival of officials from Portsmouth. Lacavita was a roomer in the Meekins home.

Meekins said the fire started accidentally from a cigarette he dropped near the barn. The resulting fire, he added, spread to where a barrel of gasoline was stored. Meekins' wife and three children escaped.

Gambier, O., S t. 20 (AP)—The Rt. Rev. William A. Leonard, bishop of the Episcopal church, who has been ill for more than a year, was reported sinking rapidly early today.

U. S. ORCHESTRA IS BARRED OUT BY FRANCE

Hal Kemp's Players Threatened With Expulsion if They Continue Resort Music

Paris, Sept. 20—With 500 French musicians facing unemployment today from the expansion of talking motion pictures, the Paris authorities made a first move to curtail American orchestras here.

The authorities have forbidden Hal Kemp's orchestra to play at Les Ambassadeurs, a stylish Champs Elysees pleasure resort.

According to Kemp's manager, they were told either to cease their musical activities or to leave France. They will leave Wednesday.

Boston musicians rose in protest today with word from France that an American orchestra had been barred from that country, in a move to curtail American orchestras.

Coming in the wake of France's request that William Randolph Hearst leave for his exclusive expose of a secret pact that greatly affected America, American ire was doubly aroused today.

BOYCOTT URGED

Representative orchestra leaders here scored the action of the French government in barring American orchestras, some of them urging a boycott of that country when they see their mistake and seek American music again.

Some of the comments follow:

Ray Stewartson, leader of a Back Bay orchestra, says:

"France should be ostracized by American orchestras even after she relents her latest move, which she is bound to do. Difficulties have been encountered in other countries, but this is the first time a direct slap was given in orders to quit or get out. With the loss of American music, I can see the loss of American visitors to France. And that means revenue. Their attitude doesn't seem the same toward America since Mr. Hearst exposed their secret pact."

NO RECIPROCITY

W. Edward Boyle, leader of the Copley Plaza orchestra:

"The barring of American orchestras from France certainly isn't in line with the reciprocity shown French musicians here. They are given every chance to play, within the established labor laws, of course. It's another mistake of France following close on the mistake in asking William Randolph Hearst to leave after he exposed a secret pact through his newspapers.

"It shows poor business judgement also in that it deprives American visitors to France the opportunity of listening to American music."

Al Smith to Speak on Democratic Tour

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith will take a more active part in the coming campaign that he had originally intended. Besides placing Governor Roosevelt in nomiation at the State convention, Mr. Smith will make nine speeches, three under direction of the Democratic national committee.

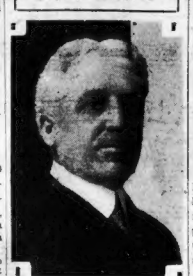
Faces Ouster



REFUSING TO RESIGN as bank commissioner of New Hampshire, Arthur E. Dole faces summary expulsion by Governor Charles W. Tobey.

TOBEY WEIGHS DOLE OUSTER

Concord, N. H., Sept. 20—Empowered to order Bank Commissioner Arthur E. Dole out of office, Governor Charles W. Tobey today had taken no further action.

He indicated, however, that steps would be taken in the near future to force Dole to quit.

Commissioner Dole continued today to decline to make a statement.

Yesterday at Nashua, Arthur H. Hale, former treasurer of the defunct Merrimack River Savings Bank, was found not guilty to seven indictments charging irregularities in his bank affairs. He was ordered held in $25,000 bail.

GIRLS HELD IN THEFT RING

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 20 (AP)—Three women, two of whom were described by police as the sweethearts of burglars who fought a gun battle with police in Danbury yesterday, were arrested here today after loot valued at $5000 had been found in a North Haven home.

The women, who are held in $5000 each, are Mrs. Gladys Macario, Elizabeth D. Sheehan, 27, of Deerfield, Mass., and Elizabeth LeMaine of Greenfield, Mass.

Police are searching for Mrs. Macario's husband, Charles, and Carpenter Searles, 25, of West Haven, in whose name an automobile abandoned at the scene of the Danbury robbery, was registered. Harold Skiff, 26, of West Haven, suffered three wounds in the leg while trying to escape after the gun fight in which Policemen Arnold A. Schulze and Wilbert Simpson were slightly wounded.

FRAUD LAID TO BROKER SMITH

Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner was notified today by John C. Hull, director of the "blue sky" division of the State Department of Public Utilities, that Herman Smith, former Boston broker, now of parts unknown, conducted business in a fraudulent manner, with an Everett woman as his alleged victim.

The information formed part of the papers in the case over to Dist. Atty. Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex County.

According to Director Hull, Smith induced Mrs. Ella Hardy Whiting of Everett to hand over three first mortgage railroad bonds, worth $850, in exchange for 200 shares of a certain stock and securities valued at $2000.

Smith, it is alleged by Hull, failed to deliver the securities he promised, whereupon Mrs. Whiting made complaint to the state department.

Girl Athletes Take Day at Marblehead

A day for recreation before the start of classes today for 40 members of the College Women's Athletic Association, Boston University's college of liberal arts, is Devereux Beach, Marblehead, today. The party left North Station with hiking, swimming, games, a marshmallow and hot dog roast, outlined for the day's program.

Ora Parris of Lowell is in charge of the affair, assisted by Gertrude Calahan of Lynn, president of the W. A. A., and Lucy Iacovelli of Milford.

Dozing Driver Is Injured in Crash

John Fendwell of 128 Riverview ave., Weymouth, was badly hurt today when the auto he was operating collided head-on with a trunk on the Boston Post rd., near the Stony Brook railroad crossing in Weston.

He was taken to Waltham Hospital where he was reported to be suffering from a fractured leg and possible fracture of the skull. His name was placed on the danger list. Police say Fendwell dozed at the wheel of his machine.

State Leaders Advised to Go Slow on Positive Platform Planks

Washington, Sept. 20—While President Hoover ostensibly is keeping hands off prohibition fights, word is being quietly passed out that he would like to see state party platforms avoid too positive commitment.

Publicly, of course, the White House has no advice to offer perplexed leaders, like those in Massachusetts and New York. The position taken is that it is for the state conventions themselves to decide.

To inquiries of "what are we going to do?" the answer is given that a plank can be drawn which will remind voters that prohibition is still being investigated by the Wickersham commission, and that until it reports all Republicans should preserve a somewhat judicial attitude.

The Wickersham commission has been on the job for more than a year investigating lawlessness in general, and prohibition in particular. It has issued one partial and rather negative report.

Another is due in December.

It has been rumored—and denied—that the commission will report prohibition is impossible of enforcement. It also has been reported—and denied—that the commission will render a majority vote in favor of modification and some sort of dispensary system.

CRATER'S WIFE QUITS MAINE

Belgrade, Me., Sept. 20 (AP)—Reports were current today that Mrs. Stella Crater, wife of Joseph F. Crater, missing New York Supreme Court justice, had left her summer home at Belgrade Lakes.

Mrs. Crater is wanted as a witness before a New York Grand Jury investigating the disappearance of her husband. She has been in seclusion at the Crater home here since August 6 when the jurist dropped from sight.

That an inspection has been made of telephone and telegraph messages to and from the Crater home was disclosed by Capt. Joseph F. Young, Jr., deputy chief of the State highway police. He declined to reveal the results of the investigation, but said it was made on order of County Attorney Southard.

TWO SEIZED IN B. & M. DEATH

North Adams, Sept 20 (AP)—Two men were held today pending investigation of the death of Henry Carroll, 63, of Waltham, a Boston & Maine flagman, who was found fatally injured on the platform of a caboose at Baldwinville.

The men under arrest are: Streeter Edwards, 34, of New York, and David Carter, 34, of Hartford, Conn.

The train on which Carroll was riding stopped at Baldwinville to allow an express train to pass. As it was about to leave, a member of the train crew found Carroll on the rear platform of the caboose with his skull crushed.

Body of Man Found in Quincy Garage

The body of a man about 45 years old was found today in an unoccupied garage off Granite st., Quincy. Death was due to natural causes, according to Medical Examiner Frederick E. Jones. The body was found by George Brogioli, a stone cutter. A half-eaten cucumber and a shaker of salt were found in the coat pocket but there were no clues that would aid identification.

Vatican Valuables Stolen; 18 Arrested

Vatican City, Sept. 20 (INS)—Theft of valuable ecclesiastical possessions from the Lateran palace, a part of the Vatican, was discovered today. Eighteen persons were arrested in a roundup after the discovery.

Irish Ocean Flier in U. S. Without Passport

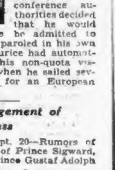
New York, Sept. 20—Col. James Fitzmaurice, intrepid Irish flyer, had a fresh reason today to be glad that he flew over the North Atlantic with Koehl and the late Baron von Huenfeld in the plane Bremen.

Col. Fitzmaurice

The Colonel was detained by immigration authorities when he returned from Europe on the liner. Reance, but after a conference authorities decided that he would be admitted to the country and paroled in his own custody. Fitzmaurice had automatically canceled his non-quota visitor's passport when he sailed several weeks ago for an European visit.

Rumor Engagement of Dutch Princess

Stockholm, Sept. 20—Rumors of the engagement of Prince Sigward, son of Crown Prince Gustaf Adolph by his first marriage, to Princess Juliana of Holland have been revived here. The reports have been printed in many of the Swedish newspapers and have not as yet been denied.



Princess Juliana

The robust, blonde daughter of Queen Wilhelmina and Prince Henry or Mecklenburg recently passed her 21st birthday. She holds a doctor's degree from Leyden University, but is more proud of a certificate which she received by qualifying as a mistress of culinary art under the direction of a Dutch housewife and a French chef.

Van Orman Winner of Bennett Cup

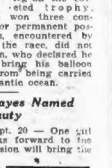
Washington, Sept. 20—Ward T. Van Orman of Akron, O., who brought his Bennett Cup racing balloon down in Canton, Mass., was officially declared the winner of the Gordon Bennett cup balloon race yesterday by the National Aeronautical Association. Van Orman also won in 1926 and 1928.

Ward T. Van Orman

His victory this year gave the United States a second leg on the coveted trophy which must be won three consecutive times for permanent possession. Storms encountered by other pilots in the race, did not deter Van Orman, who declared he was forced to bring his balloon down to keep from being carried out over the Atlantic ocean.

Bernadine Hayes Named as Radio Beauty

New York, Sept. 20 — One girl radio artist looks forward to the time when television will bring the face of the artist to your home. Miss Bernadine Hayes, mezzo - soprano "blues" singer of Chicago, was yesterday adjudged the most beautiful radio artist in the country.



Bernadine Hayes

Her blue eyes, auburn hair and trim figure caught the eyes and held the approval of judges including Harrison Fisher and Florenz Ziegfeld. Miss Hayes is 23. She received offers of training from a coach of the Chicago Civic Opera company, but declares she has no operatic career ambitions.

YOUNG RASKOB TO MARRY TYPIST AND SETTLE DOWN IN BOSTON

GIRL PICKS RING FROM HEIRLOOMS

Difference in Religion—She Is Jewish and He Catholic—Is No Barrier to Love

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 20—Miss Minerva Elaine Aaronson, young secretarial worker of this city, late yesterday announced her engagement to wed John J. Raskob, Jr., son of the enormously wealthy chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

It is reported that Raskob has set aside a trust fund of $2,000,000 for his son and bride, to become operative on the day of their marriage.

The couple will make their home in Boston.

The differences in religion of the young couple, it is stated, will prove no barrier to their wedding, which is scheduled to take place next spring. Miss Aaronson is of a distinguished Jewish family—her late father was a member of Congress—while young Raskob, like his father, is a Catholic.

Both Miss Aaronson and her fiance are fond of equestrian sports. After the wedding and their honeymoon, it is declared the young couple will go housekeeping in Boston, where young Raskob will open offices in an engineering enterprise.

SCHOOL ROMANCE

Their romance began while young Raskob was a student at the Sheffield Scientific School, of Yale, where he graduated last June.

Reports of their engagement spread a few months ago, but at this time were denied. Later, however, Miss Aaronson was a guest of Mrs. Raskob, Sr., at their summer home in Centreville, Md.

A most interesting statement in connection with the young couple's troth is that Mrs. Raskob, Sr., exhibited to Minerva a jewel box containing many blazing gems, heirlooms of the Raskob family, and invited Miss Aaronson to make a selection for her engagement ring.

SHOWS ENGAGEMENT RING

At any rate, Miss Aaronson has let her intimate friends see a large, square-cut diamond which adorns her engagement finger. She has been quietly spending recent weeks here with her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Aaronson, 364 Sheridan ave.

Miss Aaronson has a sister, Hetty. Her father was the late Abraham S. Aaronson, formerly prosecuting attorney of this county.

Miss Aaronson and young Raskob have been seen together here repeatedly at various university social functions, and it is said that at the New Haven horse show she occupied a box with Mrs. Raskob and her son.

BABY 'IN WAY' POISONS IT

Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 20 (AP)—Alleged to have slowly poisoned to death her five months' old son by feeding poison in his milk, Mrs. Edna May Coolbaugh, 26, Cooperstown, is held in the Otsego City jail on a charge of first degree murder.

The Binghamton Press says District Attorney Grant of Otsego County has obtained a confession from Mrs. Coolbaugh in which she said she poisoned the baby so she could have her time free to be with a man friend.

Dist.-Atty. Grant announced the young mother, who has four surviving children, broke down late last night and made a written confession of the poisoning. The child died in a hospital Sept. 11.

The dead Coolbaugh, 27, was the woman's husband, is held as a material witness.

Suspicion of the authorities was aroused when the baby died suddenly less than 24 hours after he had been taken to the hospital by the mother. Investigation started after parents refused to permit an autopsy until they were informed such action would be taken in any event. The autopsy disclosed the poison.

Two Priests in Group Shot for "Hoarding"

Moscow, Sept. 20 (INS)—Eight persons, including two priests, were shot by Soviet secret police on charges of hoarding gold and silver coin, as well as counter-revolutionary activities, it was revealed today. At the same time, 438 persons were banished to prison camps from three to ten years.

AUTO RATES OFF TILL MONDAY

Massachusetts automobile owners will learn the compulsory automobile insurance rates for 1931 on Monday, Merton L. Brown, State commissioner of insurance, announced today.

Commissioner Brown had hoped to announce the rates today, but the mass of details connected with the rates made it impossible for him to do so, he said.

The week has been spent with his assistants, trying to whip the schedule into shape. Boston's rates are understood to have been revised, along with those of Chelsea and other communities under dispute.

There have been consistent reports around the State House to the effect that the new rates would incorporate a demerit system of assessment, but the commissioner refuses to give these reports credence.

"When it can be done," said Brown, "I believe in having the fellow who has the accidents pay a bigger share than the careful driver. The Legislature may do something about that."

GERMAN REVOLT PLANS FOILED

Berlin, Sept. 20 (AP)—Reports of an impending Fascist "putsch" today were branded officially by the Prussian Government and the Federal Ministry of the Interior as devoid of the slightest foundation.

The authorities, it was stated, are watching both Fascists and Communists closely, knowing exactly their intentions and their equipment for possible trouble. There were no signs, the denial said, that an uprising is imminent.

The Prussian police, said to be thoroughly Republic, found no evidence of secret military drill by Fascists, as reported in one section of the German press. Police say they are convinced that the Fascists have no arms to speak of.

Authorities assert that reports of a "putsch" were launched by Communists and express regret that the press gave them credence.

Donald B. Cameron, Lowell Banker, Dies

City's History Tonight Ends Gala Pageant

Striking tableaux portraying outstanding events in the history of Boston during the Revolutionary period, interspersed with a musical gymnastic exhibition, were presented today at the Tribune on Boston Common by the United German societies of Greater Boston as one of the concluding features of Boston's week of pageantry.

Mayor Curley and other city officials viewed the program, which started at 2 p. m. and lasted four hours.

Participating in the musical gymnastic exhibition will be gymnasium classes from eight turnvereins affiliated with the New England District Turning Societies, of which Christian Neubauer is director.

FIREWORKS LATER

The musical numbers included orchestral selections and choruses, with the prize winning chorus of the Associated Lutheran Young People's Society, under direction of Mrs. Erdine Tredennick Oedel. German glee clubs of Boston combined in several sections.

Another feature of the long program was the unique drill formations by the ladies' military degree team of the German Order of Harugari, led by Mrs. Marie Belzer.

The tableaux was presented by members of the Victoria Sport Club under the direction of Otto Zabrowsky, president.

FIREWORKS DISPLAY

The pageant committee comprises Ernest Seemueller chairman; Mrs. Elizabeth Moeckel, Mrs. Meta Placnitz and Mrs. Anna Nagel.

The entertainment, under the direction of the city, will be followed by a display of fireworks at the Charles river basin and the Strandway, South Boston.

Snake Nips Weymouth Woman on Foot Near Home

Mrs. Earl Rand, wife of a prominent Boston marketman, of Glendale rd., North Weymouth, is under the care of a doctor today as the result of being bitten on the foot by a snake near her home.

The reptile, believed from her description to be of the copperhead species, sank its fangs into Mrs. Rand's flesh when she accidentally trod on it. Last summer the child of a neighbor was similarly bitten by a snake.

STORM WRECKS MANY BOATS

London, Sept. 20 (AP)—A severe equinoctial gale today strewed a large section of the western coast of Europe with the toils of its fury, various kinds of craft being wrecked and many others imperilled.

The storm has been raging since last night. Reports from the southwestern coast of England today said it had attained a force of 100 miles an hour and thus gave new cause for apprehension.

While more than a dozen vessels, mostly small craft, were wrecked or badly damaged in British waters, no loss of life was reported.

News from the continent shows conditions are just as bad in the Channel, along the French Atlantic coast and as far south as Spain. The Italian cargo steamer Tuscania Vivaldi has been in distress off Ouessant, Brittany, since last night.

Vessels from America came through terrific conditions. The liner Statendam reached Plymouth from New York with nine windows on the promenade deck smashed by waves, while the Aurania went through three days of gales and mountainous waves.

Live-savers rescued crews off various boats that were in peril.

DRY AIDES HELD WORSE THAN BOOTLEGGER

Trial of Four on Charges of Alliance With Rum-Runners Nears Jury

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 20 (AP)—Branding Roy C. Lyle, former prohibition administrator, and his three former assistants, charged with corruption and bribery, as "worse than the bootleggers they sent to prison," Leslie E. Salter, assistant United States attorney-general, called on a jury in Federal Court here late today for a verdict of guilty.

The defendants had denied charges against them, claiming they were victims of bootleggers they had sent to prison.

Government witnesses testified the accused officials had asked the rum-runners for contributions to the campaign fund of United States Senator Wesley L. Jones, a dry and author of the "five and ten law."

GROWTH OF ALLIANCE.

Tracing the conception and growth of the alleged alliance between bootleggers' organizations and prohibition officers, Salter said the whole plan of the defendants could be summarized in one sentence:

"Let the rum runners operate and bring in lots of liquor; milk 'em dry and in the end send them to the penitentiary to destroy their credibility as witnesses."

ACCUSED BY RUNNERS

William M. Whitney, former assistant prohibition administrator, was accused by the liquor runners.

Earl Corwin, former chief field agent, and R. L. Fryant, former agent, the other two defendants, were linked by Salter in the operations of the protection machine.

New Clue Found in Mooney Bomb Case

San Francisco, Sept. 20 (AP)—Eugene Garaiche, 42, a ship rigger, told Chief of Police William J. Quinn today he saw a man place a grip at Steuart and Market sts. here on afternoon of July 22, 1926, which, he believes contained the bomb that exploded and killed two persons during a preparedness day parade.

Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings are serving life sentences for the bombing.

Society Back to City for Winter

SOCIETY IS JOURNEYING homeward. Shutters are coming down, and interior decorating is under way for the winter quarters along Beacon st. and Commonwealth ave. and Beacon Hill. The Alvin T. Sortwells have taken a large house at 3 Louisburg sq. for their attractive family, and Mrs. Sortwell is no doubt seeing that there is a dash of red and yellow, the Myopia colors, in some cozy nook, as she goes in for the bizarre in decorating, and always successfully. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lothrop Ames are busy getting settled in their new apartment in the Junior League Building, which they have recently purchased. Mrs. Ames was formerly Mlle. Maurice Mozette, a Mexican opera singer.

DR. AND MRS. EDWARD HAMLIN (Rose Bryant), who were married in June in Milton, have returned from their honeymoon in Europe and have taken a house on Evans Way, a quiet lane behind the Isabella Gardner Palace Museum, in order to be near the Harvard Medical School, where Dr. Hamlin is studying. This is his last year there. Evans Way is small but oh, so exclusive. The Greeley Curtises are situated on it and also the Richard Millers. Society girls are quite clever at taking shabby little houses and making charming homes of them and they take a great deal of pride in so doing.

Ames Family Back from Vacation in Scotland

MR. AND MRS. JOHN S. AMES and family have returned from a summer vacation in Scotland and are at their country estate in North Easton.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD KELLY (Betty Emory) are making their home in Canada. Betty's sister, Miss May Emory, is to be one of the important debutantes this winter.

MISS ELIZABETH WELLS has won the first leg of the Dr. Andrew Wilson Cup at the Wianno Yacht Club for racing. Dr. Wilson of St. Mary's Island presented the cup to the club. It is a rare old English cup of Sheffield silver, beautifully engraved, and the donor has paid Miss Wells a pretty compliment by having a replica made of the cup, in small size, so that she may always keep it. She may not win the big cup, two trials out of three, but no doubt cherish this gift highly.

THE GERRY CUSHINGS have returned from their European sojourn and established at their place in Milton, making ready for their daughter's debut. Miss Ellen Cushing is to share honors with Miss Polly Proctor at a dance in the Milton Clubhouse in November.

MRS. GEORGE EDDY WARREN is staying in New York at the Ambassador.

ANOTHER CHARMING home soon to be opened is that of Mrs. William A. Gaston of Otis pl., Beacon Hill. Her lovely apartment two suites thrown into one, overlooks the Esplanade. We hear that the improvements contemplated to the Charles River Basin through which J. Storrow's generosity will make homes along the river more desired than ever.

Mrs. Baylies Heads Patronesses for Campfire Lecture

MRS. WALTER C. BAYLIES of Commonwealth ave. is chairman of the patronesses of the benefit lecture for the Campfire Girls of Greater Boston that is to be given by Capt. John Noe in Symphony Hall on October 10.

DAILY ANTIQUE

No. 201

We are unable to give you the age of this old time gun, but what an interesting firearm it is. It is now the property of Thomas H. Duggan of 80 Dudley st., Roxbury. While working on the razing of the Dorothy Draper House, on Center st., Roxbury, Mr. Duggan found this gun. It has a very heavy spring. The cap was placed in the receptacle "A," this snapped against the tube "B," and set off the powder. The exploded powder in turn sent the bullets to the target. The weapon has a wooden handle and was manufactured by Allan Thurber, of Worcester. This name appears on the barrel.

Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of antiques of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, providing the owner lives in Greater Boston. Address the Antique Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

Food Sale at Winthrop Tuesday

By NANCY BREWSTER

For months members of the Winthrop Catholic Woman's Club have worked in the interest of a bridge-whist and food sale and next Tuesday evening their labors will bear fruit, when the affair takes place in St. John's Hall, Lincoln st., Winthrop.

Mrs. Peter E. Connelly, president of the club, and members of the executive board have had charge of the arrangements. Proceeds of the party are to be added to the fund started by the club some time ago for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the room the club voted to donate to the new Winthrop Community Hospital. The room is to be known as the Winthrop Catholic Woman's Club Room.

Of the various committee these women are the heads: Bridge, Mrs. Ernest D. Feaver, chairman; Mrs. Albert E. Kelcher and Mrs. Edith M. Christopher; whist, Mrs. Joseph S. Fax, chairman; Mrs. David J. Donovan and Mrs. Frank A. Farrell; admissions, Mrs. Bernard F. McElligott; food table, Mrs. Louis Enos, chairman; Mrs. William A. Bunton and Mrs. Patrick J. Sloan; prizes, Mrs. Bartholomew J. A'Hearn, Mrs. John J. Gilgan and Mrs. J. Arthur Merrill. Miss Ursula R. Muldoon, second vice-president of the club, is vice-chairman of the general arrangements.

General Federation Sponsors Program for Naval Groups

If the General Federation of Women's Clubs can help it, club officials are not going to allow "city sisters" to think of rural women as "farm drudges!"

A comprehensive program to elevate rural women to the exalted cultural level of community-informed, civic-conscious women is under way. Federated clubs are to be sponsored by the General Federation with federated policies as the background.

The work in Massachusetts, in charge of Mrs. Herman A. Harding of Chatham, fourth vice-president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, is to be carried on under the head of Federation extension since the problem is not exactly one of rural proportions.

However, into the remote corners of the Commonwealth, Mrs. Harding will take Federation stories with a view to organizing women into clubs in far-spreading communities.

Committee Head in Plea for Women to Join Federation

"Every woman today wants to be progressive. The 20th century has little patience with the people who are deaf and blind to world progress."

This is the statement of Mrs. Frederick Glazier Smith of Somerville, chairman of membership in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in her plea for the affiliation of groups with the greatest body of organized women in the world—the General Federation.

"General Federation membership is easy if made a family affair," Mrs. Smith continues. "The world is growing smaller each day as means of transportation and communication makes distance negligible. It is better our clubs be equipped to meet world problems than to be affiliated with an international organization?"

Little Suits Beneath Top Coats

By ANN ARDEN

MODEL FROM F. P. O'CONNOR CO.

THERE IS nothing quite so dear to a young collegian as a trim little suit which can be worn under a fur or tweed topcoat. The type of suit that is grand for early-fall days on campus and comfortable for classes the whole year through. Such suits are equally useful to us whether we pursue careers in the city or jaunt to fall meets in the country. These suits are like the spring tailleur, although they are a bit more casual in design. Short belted or box jacketed, some trimly fitted in at the waist—and flared or pleated skirts with tuck-in blouse—are typical details, and unless fashion does a direct right-about-face by spring, you will be able to wear these same little suits to greet the first robin!

* * *

THE SMART costume pictured is of fine wool in dark brown, its hip yoke tuck, repeated about lower edge of the elongated bodice, and cuff detail, and accented by row of small buttons. The sleeveless blouse is of yellow silk, the pleated frill edged in brown. A patent leather belt, also brown, marks the waistline. The brimmed hat is of light brown felt, banded in dark brown grosgrain ribbon.

* * *

THE BAG, with braided strap handle, is of brown antelope, with marcasite ornament. The necklace of carved brown wood, and yellow rondelles.

* * *

IT IS quite right and proper to indulge your fancy for frills and fur-belows this fall, but you should limit them mostly to the blouses that you wear with your suit. These may have jabots, fine handwork, soft bows and tucks for trimming. The blouse may be either tuck-in or over-blouse style, but the waistline must be very definitely indicated by means of belt or fitted hip section.

* * *

PATENT LEATHER promises to return to favor with the colder weather. Black patent leather operas are smart for all hours of the day. Brown patent is scheduled for appearance with the fall browns. The combination of patent leather with suede is another new note.

Clubwomen Complete Elaborate Program on World Problems

Four finely worked out programs have been completed on the subjects of agriculture, industry, mining and transportation, for the clubwomen of the nation. These have been supervised by Mrs. Arch Trawick, chairman of the division of problems of industry in the General Federation, and are available at Federation headquarters in Washington.

"Organized club women have an obligation to see that the industrial organism is made the servant, not the master, of human progress," explains Mrs. Trawick. "If our civilization is to endure, every man must have a right to share in an intelligent understanding of the world in which he works, in the creation of beauty, and in the joy of life. We can only discharge this obligation after knowledge of the forces which have been and are at work in our industrial structure has been attained, and the understanding of the industrial needs of conditions in our own countries is complete."

GATHER MONDAY

Twenty-eight young women have been selected from the close to 300 applications received by the Typical New England Girl Editor of the Boston Evening American, and these charming girls have been summoned to the Hotel Statler Monday, where at noon they will be the guests of the Boston Evening American, of Joseph Brennan, managing director of Loew's State Theater, and later in the afternoon they will be personally interviewed by the judges.

Feminine hearts beat anxiously. Feminine hopes drift into the land of France, to the French capital, to the beautiful Riviera, to the old and new Paris, where the TYPICAL NEW ENGLAND GIRL will be sent when finally selected by those impartial judges.

LUNCHEON FIRST

An informal luncheon will start the young women off in good humor, make them feel at ease, and with only the managing editor of the Boston Evening American, the Typical New England Girl Editor and Mr. Brennan to share their fond hopes, the girls will be prepared for the "big moment."

The Typical New England Girl Editor will greet the young women when they arrive at the Hotel Statler. They will be introduced to the managing director of Loew's State Theater, which is soon to show "What a Widow," that sensational influx of Gloria Swanson's who will accompany the winner to Paris, with a Boston Evening American official.

Monday, then, is the day of days for these happy young women.

More of contest news later.

Ethel's Daughter Carries on for Barrymores

By DOROTHY ROE

Universal Service

New York, Sept. 20—She is the mother of the most talked-of debutante of the coming season.

Her face is smeared with burnt-cork and she wears a pink and white percale house dress as she bustles busily back and forth, superintending the last minute details of the big coming out party.

It won't be on Park ave., this widely heralded debut. It will be on Broadway.

For she is Ethel Barrymore. And the most important thing in the world to her just now is the approaching stage debut of her daughter, 18-year-old Ethel Barrymore Colt, who will appear with her illustrious mother in the forthcoming production of Julia Peterkin's famous Negro novel, "Scarlet Sister Mary."

"What about this line? It seems weak . . . Are the costumes ready? . . . Those ballads—who has the music"

The first lady of the American stage holds a script of the play in one hand and a sandwich in the other.

OPEN IN COLUMBUS

There couldn't be as much tense excitement on the eve of six debutante balls as prevails these days backstage at the Ethel Barrymore Theater.

The strain of interpreting her own first black-face role is completely subordinated by the glamorous Miss Barrymore to her interest in the first stage appearance of her daughter.

The company of "Scarlet Sister Mary" is finishing its final rehearsals before departing Sunday night for next week's opening in Columbus, O., preliminary to the Broadway presentation on Oct. 15.

As the crown princess of America's royal family of the theater, young Ethel Barrymore Colt merits the attention that has been centered upon her.

HARD COURSE AHEAD

She has a large heritage to live up to—her family tree bears the most luminous names of the American stage—John Drew, Maurice Barrymore, John and Lionel Barrymore, and Ethel Barrymore.

Her mother had planned to introduce her to society this fall, through conventional channels. There would be dance programs instead of the booklets put out by the New York Theater Program Corporation. There would be laughter and frivolity and pretty clothes and the carefree joy of youth.

But the daughter of the Barrymores chose a sterner course.

She elected to follow in the footsteps of her ancestors.

So her bow to the public will be from behind the footlights instead of on a ballroom floor.

She will wear the gingham apron of a South Carolina Negro girl instead of a party dress.

Fritzi Cooks Well, Too

Fritzi Scheff places her culinary skill on a par with her voice as far as drawing power is concerned.

Temperament in a tea room will cure Yale students as did the "Kiss Me Again" of 20 years ago, if the dream of Fritzi comes true.

The famous "Fifi" of "Mademoiselle Modiste," in Boston to sing tomorrow night for a war veteran's benefit, made it known that she is not only going to become a tea room owner at Southington, Conn., but will also be the scintillating hostess of a miniature golf course.

In fact if things work out as the bubbling Fritzi hopes—in her own words—singing will be nothing but a sideline.

"Under conditions as they are at present, I am working about four months of the year," she said. "The rest of the time drags on my hands. I might as well use the eight months and turn my place, 'Melody Cottage,' at Hitchcock Lakes into a tea room.

"In the summer folks can play on a miniature golf links which I will have laid out. In the winter they can come and skate on the lake. I am sure to get plenty of patronage from Yale boys—it's such a short drive from New Haven.

"Won't you sing 'Kiss Me Again' for the boys?" she was asked.

"Yes, I may—but I think perhaps that they will come for my cooking. They say I cook real well. Fritzi Scheff's jams, jellies and candies are quite well known down in Southington," she replied.

THIS PICTURE ILLUSTRATES how the sturdy Bostonians of Colonial times got rid of a governor they did not like. Governor Sir Edmund Andros so aroused the Colonists that on April 18, 1689, they armed themselves, seized upon the agent of King James II, and with tap of drum escorted him to prison. After a year he went back to England. His most lenient biographers called Andros a needlessly harsh man.

Edna Van Horne Bride of Broker

Miss Edna Perel Van Horne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Van Horne, 146Salem st., Cliftondale, and Theodore Hollis Chisholm, son of Councilman and Mrs. George W. Chisholm of 109 Plymouth rd., Malden, were married last night at the Cliftondale Methodist Church by the Rev. A. A. Pitman, pastor.

Miss Virginia A. Thornton of Revere was maid of honor and little Anne Grace Van Horne, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Leland B. Chisholm, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Chisholm is a Boston broker. They are to make their home at 464 Salem st., Medford.

DEMOCRATIC CHIEFS GATHER TO COMPLETE CONVENTION PLANS

SEPT. 27 SET AS DATE OF MEET

Wet Plank Assured With Ely and Coolidge as Standard Bearers

BY BERNARD J. DOHERTY

At the call of Chairman Frank J. Donahue, the Democratic State Committee met today at Tremont Temple to organize for the state convention next week.

Tentative arrangements for the convention to be held in Boston are to be discussed with the views of Joseph B. Ely and Marcus Coolidge, standard bearers with the gubernatorial and senatorial nominations.

The makeup of convention committees will be decided with the possible exception of the chairmanship and members-at-large of the important committee on resolutions which drafts the platform.

SCORES STATEMENT

Donahue today took a fling at a statement issued by Chairman Amos L. Taylor of the Republican State Committee, in which Taylor stated that his organization had just begun to fight.

Donahue charged that the Republican organization was behind Butler in the senatorial fight. Despite this opposition, he said, Draper would have won if it hadn't been for the candidacy of "Rossy" Gillis.

"Mr. Taylor talks about harmony," the Donahue statement read in part. "I wonder how much harmony he expects from the French Americans who saw Mayor Carriere of Fitchburg defeated more than two to one by a candidate the Republicans themselves have repudiated several times.

"We are all awaiting the solution which Mr Taylor promises Governor Allen is going to find for the automobile insurance rates and are eagerly waiting to see President Hoover lend in the solution of our many and pressing national problems."

DISCONTENT APPARENT.

Rumblings of discontent against the dryness of the Republican state ticket and candidate for senator may break into open revolt at the party convention a week from today in Symphony Hall. Among the rank and file evidences of fear that a dry platform means defeat in November are growing more pronounced.

Close friends of Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester, who made an issue of prohibition in what was considered a prohibition territory, defeating his dry opponent three-to-one, said today that he is prepared to offer and fight for the adoption of a wet plank.

New Fire-Fighting Unit Perfected

Tiny Boat to Be Used Battling Pier Fires; Gun Shoots 100-Foot Stream

Another step in the battle against flame was taken successfully today when a new but tiny fireboat for fighting fires in tight water places was announced perfected by Supt. Winfred Bailey of the high pressure steam and marine service, and Fireman John J. McDonough, the inventors.

Their apparatus is a small, high-powered water gun mounted in the bow of an outboard boat with a powerful motor inboard solely for throwing the water.

The boat can nose into tight places between piers and get at flame at close quarters, where the big fireboats cannot go. Its gun shoots a stream 100 feet and the motor pumps 125 gallons under 125 pounds pressure per minute.

Supt. Bailey John J. McDonough

FIGHTING PIER FIRES will be easier from this date, because the high pressure marine service has perfected a small fire fighting boat. Above is Supt. Winfred Bailey and John J. McDonough, of that service, who invented the boat. Besides Supt. Bailey and others testing boat are McDonough, Arthur Laundry and Capt. John Williams. (Staff photo.)

Bequest to "Combat Materialism and Infuse Fresh Vitality in Religion" Cited

London, Sept. 20 (AP)—Several bequests to further the cause of spiritualism are made in the will of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

"If I have not left more to complete this cause," Sir Arthur wrote in his will, "it is because during my lifetime I have been able to devote considerable sums of money to this end and because my successors will, I know, follow my example in combating materialism and endeavoring to infuse fresh vitality into the various religions of the world."

Lady Doyle was bequeathed $2500 to be paid at once, and his elder daughter, Mary, $10,000. After other bequests are satisfied the estate is to be divided in halves, one-half going to the widow and the other half to three younger children, Denis, Malcolm and Jean.

The total value of the estate cannot be ascertained until inquiries in various parts of the world as to the sale of Sir Arthur's books are answered.

Lady Doyle, referring to her husband's will told the Daily Mail:

"Sir Arthur would have been a very rich man but for gifts to Spiritualism. He sacrificed a handsome income for the cause."

She told the Daily Mail that death had not brought rest to him.

"He is very tired," she said. "Just as on earth a man after years of labor desires rest, so my husband wants peace for a while. He is studying the ropes and learning how to get in touch with us in the best way."

How German Children Teach Themselves—
How Thirty Cents Earned $50,000—
Royalty's Toast to Poverty—
What Happened After Lina Basquette Hurled a Bible on the Floor

(Copyright, 1930, Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

GERMAN THINKERS, leaders of the world in many directions, have developed a system of education by which children teach themselves and each other.

With no supervision they study and learn arithmetic, the rudiments of music, and rapidly learn to spell.

The problem involved in this important accomplishment is that of creating in the children a desire to do what they should do.

Wisdom teaches children by letting them work along lines that interest them, instead of forcing them along lines that distress and repel them, and that is the triumph of modern education.

A LITTE GIRL, weeping, held in her arms a small black puppy. It was a good puppy, she told Mr. E. Henry, the young man who sympathized with her. She had found it, but her mother wouldn't let her keep it.

Untruthful, to be kind, young Mr. Henry said he happened to need a dog. He took the puppy, gave the little girl thirty cents, promised to feed her dog and perhaps "teach it some tricks."

He kept the promise, and the dog, known in moving pictures as "King Tut," has earned $50,000, a good return on thirty cents.

You will not always make as much as that by being kind to children, but you will always do something more important than making money.

"SWEET ARE the uses of adversity." If the adversity doesn't last too long or "rub it in" too hard.

On the other hand, "This is truth the poet sings, that a sorrow's crown of sorrow is remembering happier things."

Dante said it hundreds of years before Tennyson was born, when he described the interior of Hell, with the treacherous wife, Francesca, and hunchback husband's good-looking brother bitterly remembering in Hell the happiness of earth forever gone.

"There is no greater sorrow than to be mindful of the happy time in misery," Longfellow's translations.

Poor Mrs. Alice Phasey, of Milwaukee, aged 76, knows all about that. She was once a most popular dancer and singer on the European stage. Royalty applauded her politely.

Since then, she has bowed down, poor old woman, to scrub floors, in Milwaukee buildings. And now she is too old even for that work. When she could no longer dance her husband disappeared.

You could hardly advise such a lady of 76 to "look ahead hopefully."

WE ARE MADE BETTER by our own fears. "Conscience does make cowards of us all," Shakespeare said it, and you know it is true. So does lovely Lina Basquette; what do you think she did?

She was star in a play called "The Godless Girl." She was in "The Follies." And once, how could she do it, she used a dreadful Bolshevistic chart to teach atheism.

This foolish girl, in the course of a play, seized a Bible and threw it on the floor. After that, conscience pursued her, although probably the Ruler of the Universe would have accepted her repentance, and all sort of misfortunes followed.

SHE LOST TWO HUSBANDS, her health and beauty vanished. She lost her baby, her stage popularity disappeared. All her money went, and at last she tried to kill herself.

She swallowed poison. The law would not let the sad story end there and pumped her out.

Let this be a lesson to us all to treat with reverence the things that should be treated with reverence.

IF YOU COULD HAVE SEEN that poor girl in the days when she did toe dancing, in very short skirts, and again, on that dreadful day when poison seemed her only hope, you would realize what conscience can do, and what it ought to do.

STRANGE AMONG the world's superstitions is belief in mermaids. The mermaid was supposed to be a sea creature with the upper half that of a most beautiful young woman, the lower part the tail of a fish.

Old sailors, by the thousands, would swear they had seen one. Some less reliable would say they had talked to, or even married one.

Now science shows that queer marine vertebrates called the "Dudong," or "Sea Cow," that stays in the water, and nurses its young, is the creature mistaken for a mermaid at a distance standing with its head just above water.

You wouldn't call it a mermaid if you could see it close up and you certainly wouldn't want to marry it, for it looks like an angry "Boston Bull," lacking intelligence.

BUT BREVITY IS necessary.

Can you imagine romantic, easy-going, ancient Japan turning violently moral and arresting a waitress for selling a kiss?

What has become of the Yoshiwara, where are the little girls that, according to tradition, "Used to tie the Obi in front?"

CAN YOU IMAGINE a little girl, weighing forty pounds, but grown-up, marrying a man six feet high, and having her baby turn out to be as big as anybody's baby? That's joy.

Can you imagine the witch doctors, sorcerers, of Swaziland, desecrating graves, eating the dead and causing the deaths of hundreds of innocent people, when they "smell out" somebody accused of crime?

ALL THINGS HERE MENTIONED you will see, minutely and accurately described, elaborately illustrated, strikingly and convincingly presented in tomorrow's American Weekly, distributed with every copy of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Do you wonder that the American Weekly has the greatest circulation on earth, more than six million copies, sold for ten cents each? In the United States? Nothing succeeds like intelligence.

And the management of the American Weekly is intelligent.

HAYS ASSAILED IN BEERY CASE

Los Angeles, Sept. 20 (AP)—Raymond Wells, former motion picture director, took the center of the stage today in the marital differences of Noah Beery, film actor, and his wife, Mrs. Marguerite Beery.

Wells, returning from Las Vegas last night where he went with Mrs. Beery, Sept. 8, said:

"I am astonished to learn that Mr. Will Hays, with his rigid laws of censorship, would permit anyone in motion pictures to malign a woman."

After Mrs. Beery had been gone about a week, Beery reported her disappearance to police, saying he would prosecute anyone responsible for enticing her away.

Mrs. Beery retaliated she would decide whether to return to Las Vegas to seek a divorce after efforts to iron out differences with her husband.

Notorious U. S. Gem Thief in Berlin Jail

Berlin, Sept. 20 (AP)—Herbert Sandowski, notorious international crook and jailbreaker, was sentenced to four years' imprisonment for burglary today. Sandowski escaped from Tegel Prison here June 30, while serving three and a half years, pending extradition to the United States. He is said to have stolen hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of jewelry in New York and Palm Beach.

ANDREE'S HOPES HELD TO END, DIARY SHOWS

Perils of Homeward March Vividly Described in Explorer's Notes

Stockholm, Sept. 20—Even until his final hour of life on the ice of the Arctic continent 33 years ago, Salomon Auguste Andree expected to "get through" to civilization.

This is revealed in the diary of the ill-fated balloon expedition leader, a resume of which was made public last night by the Swedish government. The last words in Andree's diary, dated Oct. 2, 1897, are:

"With such comrades, one ought to get through under any circumstances."

LAKES IN ICE

Andree's diary, consisting of 142 pages, reveals little not already known through the publication of the story from the diary of Nils Strindberg, which was found by the Herald-Dagensnyheter expedition to Vitoen, and published in America exclusively by Universal Service.

The Andree story, only an outline of which has been made public, reveals that Andree, knowing food to be within marching distance toward the south, where the expedition had three provision depots, deliberately went east.

According to the Andree diary, wet ice and frost forced the balloon down so that it bumped and dragged on the ice.

PREPARED TO LAND

Andree reveals that just before the expedition landed the balloon rose, but that he and his comrades opened the gas valves, prepared to land. The diary fails to reveal why the men deliberately landed when the balloon began to rise.

One week was spent between July 14 and July 21 in organizing the trek over the ice.

Fresh water lakes in the ice greatly impeded the march, but with the aid of their canvas boat the men pushed forward. The drift of the ice toward the westward overpowered the three trying to push eastward.

Andree remained a scientist to the last, filling his notebook with rich technical observations and even gathering specimens of earth, moss, and driftwood.

These grim specimens, recovered on White Island by the Herald-Dagensnyheter expedition, are considered by the scientific commission as highly valuable Andree relics.

GIRL FLIER HAD 3 HUSBANDS

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 20 (AP)—Investigation of the accident that ended the life of Ruth Alexander at the outset of her proposed transcontinental flight Thursday was in the hands of Coroner S. C. Kelly today.

The coroner joined the flier's friends in discounting a theory that she wrecked her plane on learning she had gone through a marriage ceremony with Robert A. Elliott, naval reserve flier, while still the wife of another man.

Records revealed she had been married three times with only one divorce. She was divorced in Richmond, Mo., in 1928, from Alden Danielson with whom she eloped to Irving, Kan., in 1926.

She married Mac Alexander July 1 1926, but they separated "two years ago." A divorce sought by Alexander had not been granted.

Two years ago she came to California and studied aviation under instruction of Ensign Elliott, with whom she went through a marriage ceremony at Yuma, Ariz., in June last.

Slayer of Two Women Hunted in Big Woods

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 20 (AP)—Victor Kettunen, suspected slayer of two women is being hunted today in the wilderness of northern Wisconsin. The search was started after the bodies of Mrs. John Ahonen, 43, and Mrs. Mabel Hoey, 37, were found near Mountain Iron, both shot.

"Bad Girl" Too Bad Even for New York

New York, Sept. 20 (INS)—A play based on Vina Delmar's "Bad Girl" was "too bad" for New York audiences, police censors found, and members of the cast will appear in court charged with giving an improper performance. Robert Newman, producer, was also summoned.

National Tour Fliers' Rum Seized at U. S. Border

Great Falls, Mont., Sept. 20 (AP)—However they may value the exchange, pilots of the National Reliability air tour had the official apology of Great Falls today in lieu of some 50 quarts of whiskey, beer and sherry confiscated by custom officers as they crossed the border.

Frank Hawks, transcontinental record holder and referee of the tour, was fined $30, Col. Charles L. Sheridan, collector, said, when the flier was relieved of six quarts of sherry.

Tom Colby, weather man, paid $10 for the privilege of attempting to bring across two quarts classified as "hard liquor."

All of which brought official regrets at a banquet last night in honor of pilots and passengers of the tour.

"It was difficult to ask the fliers to sing 'America' after their reception," said J. W. Freeman, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Flames Sweep Big Westport Pavilion

Westport Ct., Sept. 20 (AP)—Fire swept the kitchen and concessions of the Nash Pavilion at Compo Beach, a fashionable summer resort last night, causing damage estimated at $10,000. Westport firemen battled the blaze for two hours.

Family of 3 Have Same Birthday—Sept. 9

SEPTEMBER 9 IS A RED LETTER day on the Mayer Smuckler family calendar. Mayer Smuckler was born 30 years ago on September 9, in Marsh Field, Wis. His wife, Blanche, was born on the same date, 24 years ago, in Kansas, Mo. Then to make Sept. 9 a big day on the Smuckler calendar, a daughter was born to the couple last Sept. 9.

NEW MAJESTIC ON MARKET

A new contribution to radio, the Majestic model 52, the de luxe, diminutive size has been completed and is ready for distribution. This new set is a compact portable which contains all the features of reception at a popular price. It stands only three feet high and is mounted in a handsome, highly-finished cabinet which is of the open face type that stands on four removable legs. The speaker is mounted in the upper part of the set, thus elevating it so that it is actually as high as speakers in many larger cabinets.

Inconspicuous as the set is, it has eight tubes in the super-heterodyne receiver, a screen grid model. The tubes are 224, which account not only for the novel design but for the effectiveness of the set. Wave length on the set is of a wide range, for the radio is so tuned that clear, sensitive reception can be had from below the broadcasting range to high above it.

The set is very selective, not only because it is a super-heterodyne, but because every plate circuit including both signal and intermediate frequencies as well as every grid circuit is tuned. This produces a desirable sharpness of tuning and is of aid in the qualities of reproduction.

De Luxe No. 52

HERE'S THE NEW MAJESTIC, model 52, a diminutive-sized radio, just completed and ready for distribution. It has eight tubes and is very selective.

Letters from readers on current subjects are welcomed. Letters should not exceed 250 words in length, should be written on one side of the paper, and must bear writer's name. Names will be omitted in publication, if requested. Address Editor, Boston American, 8 Winthrop sq.

Tells of Home for Colored Girls

Editor Boston American:

"We have heard numerous rumors to the effect that there is no home for the colored business and school girls where they might live in a homelike atmosphere. We would appreciate it very much if you would correct this impression by publishing this letter in your column.

The Harriet Tubman House, Inc., at 25 Holyoke st., was organized 22 years ago as a home for colored girls. During the past years hundreds of girls have been accommodated when they came to Boston either for study or employment. The Harriet Tubman House is attractive and homelike in its appointments, with kitchen and laundry privileges, a parlor with piano ,books and games for social activities and recreation. Special effort is made to create a friendly and sympathetic atmosphere as well as a happy Christain home for the residents.

We have also established a playground for the children of the neighborhood.

The entire property is being renovated, therefore we are appealing to the public to assist us in carrying on our work.

Thank yea for your co-operation.

Visions Prohibition Law Covering World

Editor Boston American:

I am writing this letter for the attention of Florence Birmingham, to enlighten her on the merits of prohibition. Mr. F. Scott McBride, of the Anti-Saloon League, has just made a statement, September 14, that the cause of the weta is hopeless.

Prohibition was never forced on the country. Prohibition was creeping over the United States the last century.

Prohibition has just scored another victory. The first thing among 11 f Ghandi's demands of Great Britain is total prohibition.

Auto accidents in France due to wine have increased greatly the same as it would be here with liquor back. The people of Italy are having trouble selling wine because the people are slowly turning away from it. A new bone-dry party has sprung up in western Canada.

The world is turning dry. In a few years more there will be no liquor in the world because it is the curse of all mankind.

Why wasn't there a Martha Lee kitchen float? Fact is, I am surprised the newspapers were now represented when they are so much a part of the city's life.

Truly, I was disappointed in not seeing something of this kind because it would have made a perfectly gorgeous float and would have been welcomed by so many of the Martha Lee Cooking School graduates and pupils, among them myself, a graduate of the first cooking class, of which fact I am proud.

Can't you arrange a special parade with this feature the center? I know thousands who will go to see it, if you do.

Finds Many Chess Masters Famous in Other Lines

Editor Boston American:

A number of chess players whose sensibilities seemingly are affected by an editorial in your issue of the 19th inst, have impressed on me the duty of writing to you a little something in regard to that most profound and intellectual diversion which the ingenuity of man has devised.

For one master at chess, there are hundreds and probably thousands of master-players in each of the manifold lines of sport.

Equally so does this apply to mere players at the game of chess. Hardly in the six New England states would be found 50 chess players whom the great chess masters, George Hammond, John F. Barry and Henry N. Pillsbury, in their prime, could not have beaten giving the odds of the rook, a handicap equal to double discount at billiards.

Your editorial states: "No really great chess player of the highest rank has ever amounted to much in any other line of human effort."

There is only one answer to this false and entirely unwarranted slur at chess and chess players.

No man so stultifies himself as he who poses authoritively regarding a subject of which he is ignorant.

I permit myself to append the names of a few well known masters at chess play who quite generally are regarded as having amounted to much else in other lines of human effort:

Henry Thomas Buckle, chess champion of England; Howard Staunton, chess champion of England; Prof. Adolph Anderssen, chess champion of Germany; Prof. Alexander Petroff, chess champion of Russia; Archbishop Don Enriquel Rey Lopes, chess champion of Spain; Leonardi da Vinci, chess champion of Italy; Dr. Emanuel Lasker, chess champion of the world; Dr. Alexander Alikine, chess champion of the world.

It would seem sufficient to say in conclusion that Frederic the Great and Count von Moltke were two of the finest chess masters that Germany ever produced and that Napoleon, prone upon his map and sticking it full of colored pins, was playing chess, and that in its highest and most magnificent interpretation.

Declares Jefferson Apostle of Privilege

Editor Boston American:

It cannot be anything but amusing to hear some speakers ally their Democratic views around Thomas Jefferson and boom his name and projects today in modern times.

We have great admiration for Thomas Jefferson, but we have no great admiration for speakers in Greater Boston, who were born in culture, but find it hard to become great advocates of the rights of the humblest of their fellow citizens. Jefferson outgrew radically from the paternalistic and authoritative system of the old world.

I am saying this to inform some speakers that they must not sound the praises of Jefferson until they have first heard the sound of those principles in their own hearts and practiced Jeffersonian democracy. That man came out of the Cavalier tri-dioceses of Virginia, to be the greatest apostle of individual rights and privileges of his time.

Classes "Parasites" in Tubes of Palestine

Editor Boston American:

A theological professor in this section of the country must have his humor at times, even though theology be dry in books.

He asked a theological student what tribes inhabited Palestine.

The student had spent a great per part of the summer in cramming up on Old Testament history. He replied to this question "The Hivities, the Jebusities, the Perizzities and Parasites."

The professor sat back in his official chair and just chuckled over the idea that the Parasites were so early on holy ground.

Says Sobriety on Increase, Not Drinking, in England

Editor Boston American:

The announcement that the drink habit in England was increasing, made by many prohibition leaders in this city at a meeting last week, is not true to facts.

Sobriety is increasing in England for this reason. All kinds of alcoholic drinks have gone up in price. Probably about 100 to 300 per cent. Shortening the hours when public houses are permitted to sell drink. The increased attention given to dog shows. Heart-rendering conditions traced to unemployment. Convictions on the part of many that best type of life can only be maintained by being strictly temperate.

They are going to learn something about prohibition in England by not having it served up to them in laws.

N. H. LOOMIS.

Finds Only Grief in Failure of Church Merger

Editor Boston American:

Two churches in Greater Boston merged, Universalist and Methodist. There was a good, happy connection there for some time until the theological fuse blew out. Then this Universalist church was about to be merged with a Congregational Church, but the fuse of theology blew out as soon as it was connected. Six hundred Congregationalists, 100 Methodists and 100 Universalists are grieving over this affair in Roxbury.

SOMEHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Has any Museum of Natural History a specimen of the sub ocean turkey, known as the "Invertus Collapsus"?

This is a very interesting fish, and reminds me of some antics that politicians lately are imitating.

As soon as this wonderful fish swallows the hook, he at once puts the tip of his tail in his mouth and pulls himself inside out like a glove, in which feat he rids himself of the hook.

Then as soon as he finds out that he is nearly free, he swims rapidly to turn himself outside in again, and, after accomplishing this feat, no doubt with a twinkle in his eye, he is himself again.

Is this fish known, or is this a mere fish story? I cannot find any well informed piscator who can enlighten me. I am now appealing to your know-all editor, for this must be one on your paper.

CHURCHES

SERMONS AND TITLES FOR TOMORROW

The Rev. Henry K. Sherrill's rectorate of Trinity Church comes to a close tomorrow. He will be consecrated as bishop of the Episcopal diocese October 14. The Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, Mr. Sherrill's successor, is welcomed by the Trinity congregation. He will preach his first sermon as the new rector next Sunday morning. Dr. William E. Gardner will preach tomorrow.

"HOLY DAY" TODAY

For members of the Jewish faith this is "a holy day." Monday evening is the eve of Rosh Hashonah. Tuesday is "Rosh Hashonah." Wednesday, October 2, is "Yom Kippur."

Beacon Street Temple bulletin, first issue for the season, gives its entire program through the holy season. Rabbi Samuel J. Abrams will deliver sermons on such topics as "A Day of Judgment," "Journey's End," "Our Problem—Diagnosis," "Our Problem—Remedy," "Afflict Your Souls," "The Day of God," "The Call of the Spirit." The religious school of the temple began last Sunday.

SINGING CHURCH

Programs of music, singing and preaching fill the time tomorow at the Dudley St. Baptist Church. Last week's large congregations greeted Dr. Brooks who had just returned from his travels. Tomorrow morning he preaches on "3 Wise Fools" in the evening on "The Wonderland of Tomorrow." This is announced as the first of a series of "pleasant Sunday Evening Services."

CATHOLIC TRUTH GUILD

Four open-air meetings were held by the Catholic Truth Guild during the past week—in Worcester, Middleboro, on Boston Common and in North Adams.

BOSTON COLLEGE EXTENSION COURSES

The Boston College Graduate and Extension schools open for the fall term on Monday, September 29.

Registration for courses takes place at the Boston College high school building, James and Newton sts., Boston, from 3 to 6 o'clock, September 27 to 29.

CHELSEA FIRST BAPTIST

A special song service and organ recital will be held at the Chelsea Baptist Church tomorrow evening when the minister will preach on "The Spider's Web." In the morning the Rev. C. I. Wilson will take for his topic "God's Promising Man."

"CHURCHES OF CHRIST"

"Matter" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow.

The Golden Text is: "The fashion of this world passeth away." (1 Corinthians 7:31).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Our Master treated error through Mind. He never enjoined obedience to the laws of nature, if by these are meant isys of matter, nor did he use drugs. There is a law of God applicable to healing, and it is a spiritual law instead of material" (p. 463).

The Sunday services of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, are held at 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

BISHOP BABCOCK

Bishop Babcock will preach tomorrow, St. Matthews Day, at the 26th anniversary and consecration of All Saints' Church, Methuen. The Rev. Gilbert V. Russell has been rector of this parish since 1903.

ARLINGTON ST. CHURCH

The Rev. Kenneth C. Walker, the junior minister of the Arlington St. Church, will preach tomorrow at the 11 o'clock of the union meetings. Dr. Eliot is expected in his pulpit the following Sunday.

KING'S CHAPEL

The Rev. Prof. Clayton R. Bowen, Th.D., of Meadville will preach at Kings Chapel tomorrow morning. This service will be followed by a concluding summer union service next Sunday, when the Rev. Prof. Johannes A. C. Faggingter Auer, Ph.D., of the Harvard Theological School will preach.

TREMONT TEMPLE.

Dr. Brougher of Tremont Temple has returned to his pulpit full of health and ready to answer the questions now bothering many citizens, Baptists and otherwise. Tomorrow he will answer "Questions, "Shall rioting school children rule the schools?" "Why did the Republicans of California name a wet for Governor?" "Why do people get mad discussing religion and politics?" Dr. Brougher's sermon in the morning will be, "What is the Greatest Question Man Ever Asks?" and in the evening, "The Skeleton in the Closet." There will be special music.

CENTER METHODIST

The Rev. George B. Smith, pastor of the Methodist church in Malden, has returned from a trip abroad, and declares he is glad to be back and prepared for a busy year's work. Each Sunday evening the minister will give a travel talk, "Europe Through the Eyes of a Parson." Tomorrow evening Dr. Heath will tell of "The Rhine and her castle-crowned valley." Everyone is cordially invited.

NEW BOSTON AIR LINE TALKED

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Rumors of the reopening of the Boston, Springfield, Hartford and New York Airline by a group of New York financiers, were heard today at Boston Airport.

News of the suspension of operations by New England and Western Air Transport had hardly been received when word spread that another line would shortly fly the route.

Suspension by New England and Western, and storing of all equipment at Springfield, came as a distinct shock to local plane operators.

The giant Ford tri-motors have been flying in and out of the local airport regularly since last May, covering a total of more than 200,000 miles without a single forced landing.

Efforts to find the origin of the rumor about a new company were unavailing, but the possibility was acknowledged by everyone.

Ex-Safety Director Faces Liquor Term

Cleveland, Sept. 20 (AP)—Edward E. Curtis, former safety director at Canton, O., today faced a two-year term in Atlanta for his part in an alleged vice and liquor protection organization. He was convicted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

Council Head

Bishop Francis J. McConnell

SECOND CHURCH, DORCHESTER.

Dr. and Mrs. Vaughan Dabney are back from an extended European tour, in which they attended the Passion Play at Oberammergau and also visited the Holy Land. Dr. Dabney has already held an executive meeting of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, of which he is president.

Preparations are being made for the annual meeting of the Massachusetts organization in Lowell, November 12 and 13.

Plans are already underway for the production of the pageant, "Toward Freedom," to be done by the clergymen and the lay members of all the local churches. Eleanor Wood, the author, will coach and costume the entire production.

AMERICAN MISSIONARIES

At Madison, Wis., there will be held October 22 the 121st annual meeting of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. A number of delegates will go from Boston and from Massachusetts. The gathering will include all parts of the United States and from bordering countries like Mexico and Canada. Madison is making preparations for a special reception to these Congregationalists.

LINCOLN PARK

Rededication services for the Lincoln Park Baptist Church are set for next Sunday, one week from tomorrow. At the expense of $17,000 extensive improvements have been made, including a new heating plant and ventilating system. The auditorium has been given a new floor and new steps have been made for the main entrance. A campaign is on to raise money still owed on these extensive improvements.

BOSTON FEDERATION

"Who Is Guilty?" is the title of a short address to be given on Boston Common tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 by Rev Gordon E. Bigelow of the Arlington Baptist Church. He is one of four to address the strollers on the Mall along Charles st. The other three are Rev. A. J. Strait of the Methodist Church, Malden; Rev. Edward H. Walker, Universalist Church, Waltham, and Rev. V. V. Sawyer of Methodist Church, Wollaston.

HYDE PARK BAPTIST

A large men's class meeting tomorrow noon will listen to the Rev. George Lyman Paine, executive secretary of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, who has recently returned from a month's visit to Russia. He was very much stirred by what he learned and saw there, and although a large number of men, including visitors to the class.

UNION CHURCH

"The Ruling Passion," a play in which George Arliss acts, will be given in the form of an illustrated talk at the Union Church, Columbus ave., tomorrow evening. In the morning the minister, the Rev. Herbert A. Jump, will preach on "With Ezra by the Riverside." Mr. Frank McBride will give an organ recital at 6:45.

FIRST M. E.

Returning students to Boston University and to other schools in Boston will be special guests at the First Methodist Episcopal Church tomorrow when the minister, the Rev Harry Belmont Hill, will preach on "What to Do with Your Burdens." Music will be furnished by the Church Quartet. "How Can I Know I Am a Christian?" is the subject for a talk at 6:30 in the Epworth League servge. A special students' service will be held at 7:30.

COPLEY METHODIST

Dr. Clinton N. Howard, president of the National United Committee on Enforcement, will speak tomorrow evening at the Copley Methodist Church, and his title is "The Rock of the Republic." Dr. Sidger has the service in the morning. Students are especially invited to both services.

Ministers Begin Monday Assembly

Universalist clergymen will for the first time this fall gather Monday morning at the Church of the Redemption. Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole is to be the speaker. She is first vice president of the Federation of Women's Clubs. The Rev Seth R. Brooks is president, and the Eric A. Ayer secretary. All Universalist ministers are urged to be present that the year may begin with enthusiasm.

CHURCH BODY RESUMES ITS BULLETIN

Vacation past, the Federal Council Bulletin issued by the Federal Council of Churches in America, with headquartere in New York city, has issued its fall number. The magazine, while it does not claim to represent all of the opinions of its constituency, tries to sense the general trend of Protestant religion and at the same time point the way to roads beyond.

Clergymen all over the country are more and more following the Federal Council's lead, and the president, Bishop Francis J. O'Connell, whenever he contributes an article, it is read with seriousness.

In this current issue of the bulletin the bishop contributes an article on "Present Trends in the Relation of Church and State." Among other things the president of the Federal Council writes:

"Certainly the churches do not seek any such relation with the state as would give them, as churches, direct participation in state affairs. Yet the churches, acting out of their growing consciousness as social entities, will more and more insist upon putting before the public their views on public questions, especially those having to do intimately with the human values, which are central in Christianity's scheme of duties. Christianity is not teaching, as never before, that human values are the best key to the understanding of divine values."

CONGL CHURCH OVER MILLION

Congregational year books now ready for distribution give the combined membership of the Congregational-Christian church as 1,052,924. This is a lead of 8110 over last year.

Last year the two denominations united. Although the name Christian was not retained, their publications joined, and the Christian church in reality lost its identity.

The total number of churches now listed is 6560, of which 5419 are Congregational and 1151 Christian.

There is a trend toward larger and stronger churches. Figures show 100 fewer buildings house worship for the combined denominations, than were numbered last year.

Hard times are indicated by a falling off 1¼ per cent over years previous in contributions. Total for all purposes amounted to $26,870,774.

Fr. Francis X. Dolan Talks on Publicity

Last Saturday at St. Gregory's Church Dorchester, Father Dolan explained to parishioners why there must be a religious press. Among other statements he argued that the daily newspaper was the mirror of the world, how it faithfully reflected the world. He told how the world is interested at all times in its business and its pleasures to the exclusion of God and of eternity. He declared that the highest and most sacred interests of religion must take their chance with a thousand and one other news items and as a result receive little prominence or are completely ignored by the daily newspaper.

Truth Radio Period on the 8th Article

On the program for tomorrow in the weekly broadcast of Boston Catholic Truth Period over Radio Station WNAC (The Shepard Stores) the speaker will be Rev. John W. Moran, S. J., professor of domgatic theology at Weston College. The subject of his address will be "The Eigth Article of the Creed."

The Question Box will again be conducted by Rev. M. J. Ahearn, S. J., and the musical program will be given by a mixed quartette of the Immaculate Conception Church, Boston, with James Ecker, organist and accompanist.

Catholics of America Turn Toward Omaha

Catholics of America will turn their gaze toward the western plains and Omaha of Nebraska prairies next week, Sept. 22 to 25, for the Sixth National Eucharistic Congress of the United States.

Original plans for the congress were made for only a three-day meeting. The committee in charge has now decided to open the Congress on Sunday—Sept. 21—with a meeting of the diocesan directors of the Priests' Eucharistic League and the official civic reception.

Mayor Salter of Old Boston

Dr. Charles E Park and the congregation of the First Church of Boston organized in Charlestown in 1630, and now located on Marlboro st and Berkeley, have invited the visiting mayor of Old Boston to attend service tomorrow morning. The distinguished Englishman has accepted and will probably speak a few words following or preceding a sermon by Dr. Park.

Flying Parson

Dr. A. Earl Kernahan will fly part way from Oklahoma to Boston to speak before Boston ministers in Chipman Hall Monday morning. He will attend a luncheon at noon and tell of his plans for a "Visitation Campaign" in Boston.

The evangelist, Dr. A. Earl Kernahan, will assume angel methods of transportation and fly part way to Boston from Oklahoma to arrive by plane in Boston Monday to address the ministers of Boston in Chipman hall at 10:45. A visitation campaign is to be carried on under the auspices of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches. A "follow-up" luncheon, when further plans will be made, has been arranged for the Boston City Club at 12:30, following the morning meeting. A successful campaign of this nature was held last year and results aroused such enthusiasm that the second event of its kind is now to occupy the energies of many clergymen and laymen in an effort to fill pews in the city now empty.

The actual campaign does not come until November 8.

A SPADE

Since when has it been against the rules to call a spade a spade? . . . Does the nation that gave us Davy Crockett, Sam Houston, Corporal York, Lindbergh and Dick Byrd suddenly have to have its facts sugar-coated? . . . Who cares whether this thing we have just been through was an "economic depression," the fag-end of some new-fangled "cycle", or just a plain, old-fashioned "PANIC"?

POOR old crushed America—with her more than twenty million bright, shiny automobiles crowding one another into the curb, her spotless white yachts from Bar Harbor to Biscayne Bay, her banks bulging to the popping point with more accumulated savings than the world ever saw in any one country at any one time.

Awful, isn't it?—Save your pity for a nation that needs it!

Here are the facts:

Come last October, one "Black Friday," some one (probably the wise hand of Fate) pulled the rug out from under us and spilled the wildest speculative party in all history. Fortunes, actual or otherwise, melted away like butter on a hot stove. Millionaires of the morning walked home that night on their uppers—and, naturally, there was a wail.

New York shut down on Podunk!

The Podunk First National called Bill Smith's loan!

Bill Smith shut down his cotter pin factory—and the following Saturday Elmer Jones and John Brown got the blue ticket.

Down at the corner store cobwebs started clogging the cash register. Factory inventories froze up. Salesmen came in off the road with empty order books.

And more Golf Balls were sold in six months than were ever sold before in any twelve months' period in the history of the country!

Call it a "panic" if you like—but it ended the high cost of living.

Never in your life—probably never again—will a dollar buy as much as it will right now.

Is the old radio out-of-date? Get a new one. It's cheaper now to make a trade-in and pay the cash difference than to drive that old car. How about a new rug for the living room? A new clock for the mantel? The fall clothes your wife would like? Silk step-ins for little Emily? A place at Palm Beach? Flying lessons for Frederick (you can't keep him on ground anyhow)? Even if it's only a box of aspirin or a pack of razor blades—whatever it is you need or want—be smart and buy it now!

The stores of this city were never so full of real values. Go shopping tomorrow and see for yourself. Meanwhile, look over the advertisements. Every store in town right now is a shopper's paradise.

—Buy while the Buying's good!

UNEXPECTED RIVAL TO THEATER

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

WITH A SCANT three weeks of consolation behind it, the new drama season, it must be admitted, shows symptoms of the usual autumnal ailments. There have been especially rare complications during the present week—and they have left their own scars. Not even the most patient patron of the arts could be expected to venture forth to his favorite playhouse while the streets were still clogged with the city's best people bent on taking an eyeful of the mayor's glittering free shows.

• • •

BY SIMPLE calculation you may easily determine for yourself what fireworks, parade, high temperature and crowded streets can successfully accomplish as opposition to a carefully tuned legitimate drama for which cash admission is demanded. Tercentenary celebrations, mixed with broiling weather, may be excellent diversion for the town's multitude, but they certainly provide no tonic for the theater. The new season opened with high promise of good things for the playgoer and happy reward for the drama's solemn pilots. Good shows took possession of the town's leading temples. Rarely has a new season brought forth so much interesting and really worth while fare. And then the heat, bombs bursting in air and eight-hour long parades!

• • •

ALL THIS must come into the affairs of everybody with any private interest; for the theaters it has been something long dreaded and finally borne with fortitude and hope of brighter days.

But not even all this uneven, incontestable opposition has deprived the theater of the good things it is expected to display. For the week was made brighter for most by Mr. Hammerstein's "Sweet Adeline" and the new Connolly and Swanstrom musical romance, "Princess Charming."

• • •

"PRINCESS CHARMING," it must be confessed, moved upon us as a speculation; something to be seen and discussed later. Well, if anything particularly important was established by this lively entertainment, it was chiefly the fact that Messrs. Connolly and Swanstrom thoroughly understand the business of making musical shows brighter and busier—and more tempting. Of course, there is a little glory in this for Jack Donahue, who, we are told, dashed off the libretto just as he tosses his well known and popular brand of comedy across the footlights.

• • •

AS THAT ABLE spokesman of the Copley, Mr. Joe A. DiPesa, puts it, when D. E. Tyte turns his mind and talent, upon the mystery drama the playgoer just naturally is mystified. Back to his old love, Mr. Clive now toils nightly in mystery, murder and suspense. It is an importation from England, this "Shooting Shadows," and if you enjoy thrills and goose flesh you can have a signed guarantee with every ticket you buy.

Love Always Finds The Silver Lining in Threatening Clouds the Playwrights Paint

HELEN FORD

MISS FORD is to be seen in "Miss Gulliver's Travels" at the Plymouth Monday.

SYLVIA LOWE

MISS LOWE appears in the thriller, "Subway Express," opening at the Hollis Monday. The actress is not only very attractive, but has abundant histrionic talent.

JOYCE CAREY

MISS CAREY is in the cast with Jane Cowl in "Twelfth Night" now at the Wilbur.

IRENE FRANKLIN

MISS FRANKLIN does splendid work in "Sweet Adeline" now playing at the Colonial. And her pug dog is an accessory that helps her get plenty of laughs.

JINXES HELP PEN STAGE ITS PLOT

Theatrical superstitions are both numerous and amusing. The fact that good or bad luck followed some act or event is sufficient proof that the same is a "jinx" or a "hoodoo," or an augury for the better.

George Ford and Ethel Taylor authors of "Miss Gulliver's Travels," the play which opens at the Plymouth for two weeks, beginning next Monday, are both of the theater, the former a manager of distinguished stage lineage and the latter an actress of eminent experience in spite of her youth. Both know stage superstitions galore, and while they may smile at them they have used many to heighten the comedy, and occasionally the dramatic situations of their play which deals with players of the 1812 period.

For instance, the reason why the breaking of a mirror is dreaded by actors especially is explained by the early scarcity of that essential to make-up and dressing. If an actor broke a mirror it might take seven years to get another good one—which was certainly bad enough luck. So in the very opening scene the comedian and character man are scrapping over a piece of looking-glass, which is their most precious possession on a real road tour.

HUBBY PULLS THE STRINGS

In a mystery play there is always some one behind the scenes to produce uncanny effects and some one on the stage to do the screaming, but seldom is his mystery team "all in the family." However, in "Shooting Shadows," now playing at the Copley, the Belmores are largely responsible for the thrills. Herbert Belmore, stage manager, is behind the scenes pulling the strings that move tables and chairs, while his wife, Bertha Belmore, playing the part of the excitable Mrs. Hemingway, screams with terror as tables and chairs seem to jump around of their own volition.

The Belmores have been in this country for almost 18 years. This is Mr. Belmore's third season as stage manager and assistant director for Mr. Clive.

Flirtatious

ALICE WHITE

MISS WHITE is the vivacious star of "Sweethearts," feature film at the Park.

NEW SHYLOCK ON BOARDS

Charles Dillingham announces that he, in association with the Erlanger Productions, Inc., has made arrangements with Maurice Moscovitch for the latter to appear here in his interpretation of Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice." The role brought him into prominence in London. In his portrayal of Shylock he gives to the theater a man of wealth in fine clothes instead of the haggard old beggar with the unshaven face.

Casting will start immediately and the company that will support Mr. Moscovitch will be assembled to start rehearsals on October 15. The piece will open at the Tremont in Boston on November 10, going into New York a fortnight later at an Erlanger theater to be announced later. Mr. Moscovitch's last appearance was in "Josef Suss."

The New Plays

HOLLIS—"Subway Express," a mystery drama by Eva Kay Flint and Martha Madison. Story concerns a murder mystery in a subway car and its solution. Edward Ellis, as police inspector, is the featured player. Included in the supporting cast are John Hammond Daily, Allyn Gillyn, Carl Benton Reed, Maria Pettis, William T. Hayes, Edward Everett Hale, Wall Spence, Sylvia Lowe and Maude Nolan.

• • •

PLYMOUTH—"Miss Gulliver's Travels," a romantic comedy by George Ford and Ethel Taylor. The period of the story is 1811 and covers territory from Albany, N. Y., to Lunestone, O., and to Washington. Helen Ford joins the company here as the featured player. In the supporting cast are Fuller Mellish, Ignacio Martinetti, William Podmore, St. Clair Bayfield, Virginia Rovcell, Olive May and Jefferson Lloyd.

'THE SPOILERS' PROVES ITS METTLE ANEW AS TALKIE

OUR OLD FRIEND, of several silent versions, "The Spoilers," comes once more to the screen, this time in its first talkie garb. The film is the feature at the Washington St. Olympia and the Uptown, and its boast over its predecessors can easily be that it beats them at many points, chiefly in the he-man battle of the story, and in the thoroughness of Paramount's job in tackling the Rex Beach story.

• • •

THE ACTING IS handled by a good cast. Among the names are Gary Cooper, Kay Johnson, Betty Compson, William Boyd, Slim Summerville and Harry Green. Of course the tall Montana lad is the hero. The able Mr. Boyd is the villain. You will remember thrilling to the struggle between hero and villain in the old days of the throat-less silver sheet. This is a stirring knock-down and drag-out struggle, and Messrs. Cooper and Boyd do it in the new picture to the queen's taste. They rough-and-tumble it all over the lot, putting up one of the finest scenes of its kind in the history of pictures. This in itself would lure lovers of red-blooded manhood to see the photoplay; but there are other items to attract.

• • •

EDWIN CAREWE has done a very clever job at direction. He makes the most of the good tale Mr. Beach wrote; his cameras sweep the Alaska landscape, and he gets his atmosphere built up early and sustains it pretty well throughout. He has managed to work in a commendable amount of action, one of the basic needs in a motion picture and something that too few talkies have had. Then too, the dialogue itself is above the plane of that of most of the sound pictures.

• • •

MR. COOPER does well enough in a role that suits his type to a "T." Mr. Boyd is better, and Miss Johnson and Miss Compson are satisfying. Messrs. Green and Summerville do well at getting the laughs.

"The Spoilers" will provide you with good film fare. H. S.

Pictures---Variety

BOWDOIN—"Sins of the Children" and "Strictly Unconventional" for four days; starting Thursday, "Holiday," "Children of Pleasure" and Al St. John in "Two Fresh Eggs".

WALDRON'S—"Hello Boston," a burlesque show featuring "Iola Spaeth, Billy Diamond and Althea Barnes. Also two feature pictures.

He's Flying His Life-Saver

VICTOR MOORE

MR. MOORE PUTS a lot of comedy into his role of insurance man in "Princess Charming." (Shubert). The good old flag keeps him out of hot water. The sketch is from the pen of Charles Schmidt.

Attractive

DAPHNE WARREN WILSON

MISS WILSON appears in the Drinkwater comedy, "Bird in Hand," at the Majestic.

FIRE MUST BE HEATLESS

Necessity is the mother of invention in the motion picture world. During the filming of "Old English," George Arliss now at the Metropolitan, the need arose for a heatless smokeless, hearth fire. Since the parlor interior to be pictured was built on a closed sound stage, no chimney was available, and consequently smoke was taboo. And since Southern California weather in the early summer is such that building a fire is like adding salt to dried codfish, the heat could be dispensed with.

Warner Bros. technicians solved the problem by filling the grates with lumps of glass which had been smoked until they resembled coal. Among these were hidden gas tubes, which at the touch of a match immediately threw out cheery tongues of smokeless flame that heated the room no more than an ordinary gas kitchen stove.

Plays Remaining

"Princess Charming" at the Shubert. (Second week.) A lovely princess meets a dashing naval baritone.

• • •

"Sweet Adeline" at the Colonial. (Second week.) Frivolities of the gay nineties set up in lively fashion.

• • •

"Bird In Hand" at the Majestic. (Fourth week.) A testy old parent does a poor job at home discipline.

• • •

"Hell's Angels" at the Tremont. (Fourth week.) Absorbing picture of war in the air.

• • •

Jane Cowl in "Twelfth Night" at the Wilbur. (Third week.) Miss Cowl does exceedingly well for Mr. Shakespeare. The last week.

• • •

"Shooting Shadows" at the Copley. (Second week.) Right here you'll find some hair-lifting mystery.

THE JUNGLE NOW ROARS ITS TALE

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

KEITH'S TURNS OVER its feature place on screen today to what one may call the jungle's first talkie. The picture is titled "Africa Speaks," and is the result of an expedition, equipped with microphone and camera, into the heart of the Dark Continent. As the outcome the screen acquires not only thrilling sights, but the sounds made by beast and human native.

• • •

THERE WILL BE A SPECIAL treat in store for the theater's patrons tonight. Paul L. Hoefler, leader of the expedition and seen in some of its passages, will appear in person on the Keith stage to give firsthand account of some of his experiences in filming African life. The enterprise was filled with perils, and several members of the Hoefler outfit lost their lives. The leader represented the Colorado African Expedition, Inc. The start was made from Mombasa, the objective being Lagos, on the opposite side of Africa. All sorts of wild game and all conditions of savage man were encountered in the long journey cross-country and many out-of-the-way beauties of nature were photographed. Mr. Hoefler says among other things of his adventures:

Paul Hoefler

"Two weeks spent among the pygmies of the Ituri forest resulted in some remarkable motion picture and sound studies of these mysterious little people of whom the civilized world knows little. At Dikwa, in Northern Nigoria, we were entertained royally by the Emir of Dikwa himself, who met us with a native brass band and feasted us in kingly style. Other friendly natives were the Nandi spearmen, who use only spears and shields in hunting the king of beasts. Thrilling photographs of hand-to-hand conflicts were taken and are shown in the film.

"In Tanganyika we obtained one of the most amazing motion picture phenomena ever made. This was of the gigantic swarm of locusts that flew over the great plains while the expedition was there.

• • •

"These are only the highlights of the vast amount of material obtained on this amazing journey. Every detail of the trip is carefully recorded by camera and sound apparatus and the result shown in this production is at once the most colorful and authentic depiction of life in the wild African jungle ever presented to the civilized world through the motion picture medium.

• • •

"While 'shooting' the lions, I sent a magnificent young native for guns in the truck a few yards away, in case of the huge felines becoming too restive for comfort. Before any of them knew it, there was the flash of six hundred pounds of muscle hurtling through space toward the boy. His terrified face, screams—and my filming of the tragedy form one of the most startling pieces of realism ever taken by the camera."

THERE'S GOOD OLD ALE AT THIS INN

In the analysis of national character, the qualities of reserve and reticence have become identified in everybody's mind with the English race. But anyone reporting on British characteristics after seeing "Bird in Hand," John Drinkwater's all-English comedy at the Majestic, would be quick to say that the very opposite is true.

In this play, there is a second act in which the most personal facts, love and filial duty, are discussed quite openly and at hilarious pitch, not only by the father, mother and daughter involved, but also by three utter strangers who have come to pass the night in the tavern kept by the father.

To the casual observer of British habits, despite the sincerity of the types depicted in the play, such a scene might be considered exaggerated and untrue. But, according to John Drinkwater, author of the play, the scene was born of an experience in his own life and is more universally authentic than Americans might realize.

GOLDEN DATE FOR MUSIC

Music by three living New England composers will appropriately open the program to be broadcast by the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening, October 4, as its contribution to the Tercentenary celebration of the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, who is to open the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 50th anniversary season with this special radio concert, has chosen three scores typical of the best creative musical activity of New England. They are a suite in E major for string orchestra, by Arthur Foote; "Lilacs" by Edward Burlingame Hill, a musical setting of verses by Amy Lowell, poetess of New England; and "A Pagan Poem" by Charles Martin Loeffler.

Learning She Has a Good Ear

LOWELL SHERMAN AND FRANCES DADE

SILLS "NETWORK" ROLE GIVEN NEIL HAMILTON

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Sept. 20—Several years ago when an actor died his pictures were immediately withdrawn from the screen. Theater owners had an idea that the public did not care to look at any film in which the hero had passed on. With the passing of Rudolph Valentino his pictures did an enormous business. Lon Chaney's picture, "The Unholy Three," has been a sellout wherever it has been shown, and Milton Sills' two pictures. "Man Troubles" and "The Sea Wolf," are sure to have a large patronage.

* * *

We cannot help but think what a marvellous thing it is for little Kenyon Sills whose memory of his father, at best, will be dim, to be able to hear his father talk and observe his mannerisms when he grows older. No other medium could bring Milton Sills so close to his little son. "Network" for which Mr. Sills was preparing when he was stricken, will go into production shortly. Neil Hamilton, a young actor who only lately has found himself, will take the place left vacant by Mr. Sills' death. Kay Johnson who has confined herself mostly to Metro Goldwyn-Mayer pictures, has been signed for the leading feminine role. It will probably be a matter of days only until the picture is under way.

Louella O. Parsons

"Young Sinners" has been bought by the Fox company. It was a sensational success on the stag in New York almost from the day the Shuberts produced it, and let me say right here, it's a Shubert play but it will be produced on the stage in Los Angeles at the Belasco Theater shortly. Frank Borzage, who knows better how to put young love on the screen than almost any director in the business, will direct the picture for Fox. Aimee Harris, the author, has put in all the highlights of modern youth.

* * *

Luther Reed's marital troubles are sufficiently engrossing to keep him completely occupied. His marriage to Jocelyn Lee lasted about three months which is a short time in any country. Now he is seeking his freedom and she has filed a counter suit. Because of this he has asked R-K-O to take him off his next picture, "Hook, Line and Sinker," the Robert Woolsey-Bert Wheeler comedy. Eddie Cline will substitute for Mr. Reed. Luther feels he hasn't been able to do his best work as a director while he has been harassed with these troublesome court proceedings.

One of our theater owners could not see that "Sins of the Children" had sufficient audience appeal to last over a week. H. S. Gumbiner, another theater owner, booked the picture and it has been playing to crowded houses at every performance. Yesterday it looked as if it would still be doing business three or four weeks hence. Just goes to prove that no one is qualified to say what the public wants and what it does not want. "Sins of the Children" is playing at the Tower and according to Mr. Gumbiner, it is one of the most popular pictures of the year.

Beautiful

JEANETTE MacDONALD
MISS MacDONALD is a beauteous damsel in "Let's Go Native" on the Scollay screen.

HERE FOR THE HOME FOLKS

Allyn Gillyn, leading woman of "Subway Express," thriller which begins an engagement at the Hollis Monday night, was born in Cambridge, but has never acted in Boston. She admits that she has always wanted to do so but never got the opportunity before. The nearest she has been to a Boston stage was one summer she spent as the leading feminine player in a Lynn stock company.

Chauncey Olcott selected her as his leading woman when he played "Macushla" and later she supported Louis Mann in "Native's Nobleman." Then followed a season as leading woman with H. B. Warner in "Danger." Last season she played an important role in Sean O'Casey's "The Silver Tassie," but that Irish play never left New York.

"Boston is the one city where I have always wanted to act," said Miss Gillyn yesterday, "but fate has been unkind to me and kept me away from the city that I know best. But every rough road has an ending and I am going to get my wish at last. I am going to act in what I always considered my home town."

SUCCESS LAID TO FRIENDS

Sue Carol, who has a starring role in "Dancing Sweeties," now at the Modern and Beacon, tried hard, she says to keep out of the movies.

Her test proved satisfactory and she was given a bit in "Is Zat So," but after the first day of work she wanted to quit. Her friends, however, made her realize that she had a future, and as a result of their arguments she decided to remain one more picture before she started home, she declares.

ALICE WHITE IS COUNTRY 'SWEETIE'

"Sweethearts" topping a double program at the Park, has a cast that includes Alice White, Marie Prevost, Lloyd Hughes, Ray Cooke and Kenneth Thorson. It also has action with some bright dialogue and hilarious situations. The locale of the story is laid for the most part in an amusement park of a large city. Other scenes are unfolded in a department store aboard a United States cruiser, a millionaire's yacht, and a working girl's apartment.

Miss White plays the role of a country girl who comes to the big city to marry a millionaire. Marie Prevost, ace comedienne, as a sophisticated product of the big city, makes an excellent foil.

Hughes and Cooke portray a marine and a gob and their several combative moments furnish merry highlights. Kenneth Thomson is the millionaire who does not measure up to the country girl's ideals.

The second feature of this double bill is Buck Jones, with riding, shooting, bull-dogging and other typical things holding sway in "Shadow Ranch." Several comedy short reels and cartoon comedies complete the bill.

PERFECT FIT ARE TOGS TO HER VIOLA

Like any playwright, Shakespeare knew the value of sex appeal in his plays, and he demonstrated this by using the attractive device of putting his heroine in men's clothes in two of his best comedies, "As You Like It" and "Twelfth Night." There is something fascinating about the spectacle of a pretty girl in men's clothes and Shakespeare knew it.

The clothes are not, however, quite strictly men's clothes, but a modification of them. In the production of "Twelfth Night" in which Miss Jane Cowl is now appearing as a boy at the Wilbur, the star is shown in attire which is certainly not the same as that of the women of the play, but still it is not the same as that worn by the men.

The men wear doublets and hose—the type of costume that is always associated with Sir Walter Raleigh.

Miss Cowl, however, appears in a skirted costume something on the order of a Greek kilt, with a Turkish type of cloak and fez-like cap with tassel, and high leather boots. This difference from her raiment and that of the other men in the play is traditional.

MEN KILLED AS WHALE BATTLES

Whaling, one of the most thrilling and adventurous of careers, is fraught with danger, according to Capt. A. E. Folger, veteran New England whaler, who is here in charge of the exhibition of "Aimee," the gigantic mammal being exhibited alongside Mechanics Building. Capt. Folger explained:

* * *

"Even with modern equipment no way has been discovered that precludes sending men out in small boats to fasten chains and other rigging devices on the whale. Many times whales thought to be dead give a dying sweep of those powerful tails that can break the stoutest of small boats in two.

"However, firms like the Pacific Whaling Company, sponsors of the exhibition here, have instructed captains to wait several hours to make sure that the mammal is dead before they proceed with loading operations.

* * *

"Danger was very real, however, in the early days when I left New Bedford to hunt with whalers sailing from that port. Once on a long voyage my ship came upon a crew of sixteen whales in one of the lagoons of Magdalen Bay.

"Nine boats were launched and sent into the center of the school. Five harpoons landed and then started one of the most savage and prolonged combats in my experience. Two boats were smashed and sent down, while their crews swam wildly to escape the lashing tails.

* * *

"Five others were stove in so badly that constant bailing was required to keep them afloat long enough to get back to the mother ship. Four men were killed, 17 others were badly jarred. Two had their legs broken and several had from one to six ribs caved in.

"Incidentally, the exhibit alongside the Mechanics Building here contains a perfectly preserved octopus, or devil fish, said to be one of the largest ever captured. Both the octopus and whale have been preserved by expert embalming methods."

Mutual Burlesque Shows

Gayety — Howard

"Legs and Laughter," burlesque pace-setter, beginning Monday, will be at the Gayety for one week.

Angeles Lee

The equipment and amusement features, some of which are announced as being of a novel nature, makes the show one of the most successful of the Mutual Burlesque Circuit. Laugh - creating stunts, charming songs and spirited dancing will be the highlights, with a decided tendency toward novelty always being well in the foreground. Eddie Dale will handle the chief comedy role. Angeles Lee is the feminine star. The Three Upstairs, acrobatic and tap dancers who have appeared in "big-time" theaters, will offer their own specialty.

There will be another old time Mutual burlesque favorite at the Old Howard beginning with the Monday matinee. This particular star is "Hello, Jake" Fields. The show bears the title "Sugar Babies." While the laugh pace will be set by Fields, there are others who will be much in the front. Patricia Kelly will have new songs and steps. Beatrice Carr is another peppery maid. Rags Ragland, Jack Hunt and Harry Van will be featured. Much interest, too, will be centered in Fay Tunis and Babe Abbott. Apart from the burlesque the management will provide an RKO vaudeville bill of worth, including Long Tack Sam Company, Dashing Maris DeCosta, with new character settings, and Art Spaulding.

WEALTHY YET KEEPS JOB

William Demarest, coming to the Shubert in Earl Carroll Sketch Book for a three-week engagement beginning October 6, is a strange combination of a home - lover and a Broadwayite. He has compromised, during his nine months in the Earl Carroll Sketch Book as a featured comedian, by making his home in one of the largest suites of the Park Central Hotel, while playing New York, just on the edge of the White Light area and high enough to take a peep over Central Park during the daylight hours. While Demarest is now rated as financially independent, he has experienced an odd combination of hardships and luxury prior to arriving at that point.

PARIS GAVE STAR START

Jeanne Aubert, playing in "Princess Charming," at the Shubert, is the graduate of a convent school. She made her first stage appearance as a chorus girl at the Apollo Theater Paris. She later played in musical comedy at the Theatre Varieties and at the Theatre Edouard VII. At the latter Mistinguett she played her first leading roles and from there went to Buenos Aires to appear in French revues for four months. She made her great success on her return to France at the Concert Mayol with "Has Anybody Seen My Aunt."

Jeanne Aubert

She later appeared at the "Midnight Follies" in London and then at the Palace in Paris. From there she was brought to America by the Shuberts to appear in "Gay Paree." She played in this for seven months. On her return to Paris she appeared at the Moulin Rouge, in motion pictures with Leonce Perret and finally the French version of "Good News."

Borrows McCarey

Leo McCarey has been borrowed from Fox by United Artists to direct the De Sylva, Brown and Henderson musical.

'UKE' EXPERT ON THE 'GRID'

Cliff (Ukulele Ike) Edwards just can't seem to land a role that will fit into his personal experiences like most acting folk. In making his movie debut in "So This Is College," Cliff was a glee club leader. Then he went into "Marianne" as a doughboy and switched to a cowboy part in "Montana Moon." Now he's in "Good News," gone collegiate as a football trainer.

"I've never seen the inside of a college, don't know which end of a gun to shoot out of and don't know what part of a horse the bridle goes on," he wails. "Can't somebody be nailed to let me be just another ukulele player?"

DID NOT KNOW OWN VOICE

Six months ago Frances Dade knew virtually nothing about motion pictures. Today she is a featured screen actress and plays one of the leading roles in Radio Pictures' "He Knew Women," now at the Keith-Albee.

Thoroughly experienced in stage work, she was induced to take a voice test when talking pictures became popular. When she first heard the result of this test she threw up her hands in horror.

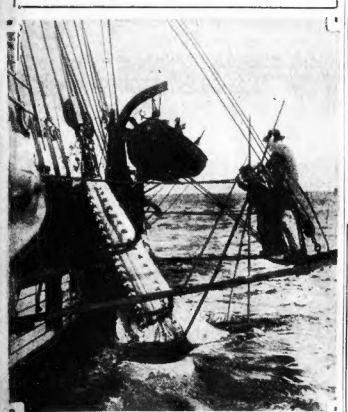
"That can't be my voice," she exclaimed. "If it is, no motion picture producer would ever use it. It sounds terrible!"

But she was wrong.

Zeppelin Film

Grant Withers has been cast for a leading role in a Zeppelin picture to be made by Warner Bros. with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in the cast.

'Skinning' a Beast of the Sea



"CUTTING IN" A WHALE

THESE NEW BEDFORD whaling men are shown flensing a whale of its blubber. Bostonians may see a real whale in "Aimee," now on exhibition, near the Mechanics Building.

'Sweetie'

SUE CAROL

MISS CAROL, scintillates in "Dancing Sweeties" at the Modern and Beacon.

Bride's Beauty Is Commented Upon; Guests Invade Old Mansion

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Cathie Paige marries her wealthy, elderly employer, Alfred Farnsworth. He is a kind and indulgent husband, but Cathie is lonely in the gloomy family mansion. Chinese servants, under the direction of Cheong, have quarters in the basement, and a sullen maid, Marguerite, in possession of unwelcome family secrets, has a room of the third floor.

Gordon Moore, a business associate of her husband, is a frequent guest at the house. Chester, Farnsworth's son, attacks the innocent friendship with malicious interest.

Cathie accompanies her husband to an engineering project in the mountains, and Gordon Moore, who is in charge of operations, kisses h[er]

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 27

(Copyright, 1930, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CATHIE'S EXHILARATION was gone, but peace remained. She was sure of herself, sure of Gordon. They loved . . . some day . . . some time . . . in some world they'd have each other . . . In the meanwhile there was nothing to do but live on and be nice to people and wait . . .

"It shows what money will do," Ruth said disconsolately to her mother. "Cathie's lost most of her freckles, and her hair has turned golden. It must have cost her a pretty penny. I don't suppose I could afford the same beauty course but at least I could buy the cream and stuff, but she won't tell. Just says she hasn't done anything. Marrying money has changed her all right!"

The mother sighed. "We all change when we marry," she said. "You will change, too, Ruth."

Bloom of Love

Ruth blushed furiously. After a little pause, she said:

"Mr. Browning happened to mention that he thought I looked well in gray. It was the other day when I wore that gray sweater and skirt. Do you think a gray suit for . . . ning . . .

Somebody else noticed that [her] petal look about Cathie . . . the bloom that comes of loving, and being beloved.

"I don't know as I can take credit for how [she] 're looking," Margie . . . one night, when she [was] . . . Cathie's hair.

It was soft and . . . a day's full of chilly . . . and this that were red golden or [ash]en, but like sunlight on leafy own trees, dappled with deep shadows where the waves were longest.

"Do I look well?" Cathie looked at herself critically.

"Well," Marguerite snorted. "Well, that's not the half of it." Anyway, Marguerite . . . Cathie took a few more looks at herself in the glass. It is true, she . . . I'm improving . . . Why, I'm really very pretty . . . and it's sort of a shame now that I haven't any better use for being pretty . . . my better use for being pretty.

Alfred was satisfied enough [with] . . . ness if I should have been pretty as that a year ago . . . but she'd mustn't think of

Callers Attracted

It was hard not to . . . People began speaking of her beauty. Cathie was afraid she would become vain, but it pleased Farnsworth to have her admired, so it was not right to worry about that.

People began to call. Beautifully dressed women. Men who wore well-cut clothes, and looked oddly like her husband. A few young men and their anxious wives—these last obviously surprised to find the exotic Mrs. Farnsworth so young.

In her efforts to find something to talk about Cathie dragged the younger Farnsworths into the conversation. Had they seen Chester lately? Had they met Chester's charming wife? Slowly it dawned upon her that allusions to Chester and Enid brought only strained silences, and bright, insincere replies. People were uncomfortable when Chester and Enid were mentioned. That was funny, because all these people were old friends of the Farnsworth family. Why didn't they want to talk about Chester? Was it because of things Chester had said about her? Were they just calling out of curiosity to see this monster Chester had described?

Wits Grow Keen

Once, Cathie would have been crushed by the thought of such a possibility, but months of matching her wits against Chester's were teaching her things. She couldn't help it—why worry? Besides, what did she care about people? Gordon Moore loved her . . . nothing else mattered.

Chester and Enid rarely came to the house any more. Cathie knew that her husband went to

AUTHORITIES TO ACT ON HOLDOUTS

School Committee Refuses a Hearing to Members of Parents' Association

Expulsion from school faces the few remaining strikers at Watertown high school, if they are not back in class Monday morning, Edwin S. Whitehill principal, announced today.

The drastic ruling is aimed at nine students, the remnants of the "army" of 500 who walked out in protest of the longer school hours. A meeting held by the school committee brought the decision that no public hearing will be granted the newly formed Parents' Association.

Charles S. Chase, chairman of the school committee, stated that parents individually would be heard if appointments were made, but a public hearing would not take place.

Coach Edwin Ward, of the football team has one veteran available for the team this fall, the rest being on probation. No cancellation of schedule will be made, which means that Coach Ward must recruit a green team to meet Waltham in the season's opening game next Saturday.

ORDERS REFUND ON STOCK TAX

The full amount for which stock rights are sold is not a taxable gain, the full bench of the Supreme Court ruled today in ordering Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long to abate a tax assessed on the estate of Thomas Allen.

The only amount taxable the court ruled, is the difference between the market value when the rights were acquired and the market value when they were sold.

The Allen estate, represented by Alice R. Allen, Eleanor W. Allen and Thomas Allen, Jr., as trustees, acquired rights on 1009 shares of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. stock, and these at the time received had a market value of $14,-441.22.

The trustees subsequently sold these rights for $15,1417. Commissioner Long assessed an income tax on that amount. The three trustees went to court about it, claiming that the tax should have been assessed only on 1043/51 the difference between the sale and which she was using at her home, 128 School st., for cleansing purposes.

CLASSES START AT WELLESLEY

With seniors and members of the faculty attired in cap and gown, the school year was begun at Wellesley College, when Dean Edith Tufts welcomed the students at a meeting in the chapel.

The incoming freshmen spent a . . . ty . . . part of the . . . morning trying to find bicycles. Every one of the 225 freshmen was intent on getting her cycle before the day was over.

Sophomore and junior girls were engaged in moving into their new quarters.

Honors for the number of students in the freshman class were taken by New York, with 130 girls enrolled. Massachusetts is second, with Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Ohio running close behind.

Two of the entering students hail from Buenos Aires, one from Mexico and one from the Canal Zone.

Mrs William Arbuckle wife of the assistant city clerk of Somerville was burned on her hands, yesterday, by an explosion of gasoline, which she was using at her home, 128 School st., for cleansing purposes.

TRADE PARLEY OPENS MONDAY

A three-day conference on retail distribution, during which prominent tradesmen will speak, will open Monday at the University Club under auspices of the retail board of trade of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

It is the aim of the body to assist merchandise selling by the exchange of ideas, and to stimulate constructive thinking about the major problems of retail distribution.

Ralph C Hudson, executive vice-president, Jordan Marsh Co., will be chairman of the first day's meeting, which will be devoted to "Retail Distribution and the Consumer."

George B Johnson, president, R H White Co., and president of the retail trade board, will deliver the address of welcome.

The second day will be devoted to a discussion of "The Costs of Distribution," with Ernest Kast, executive vice-president, R H Macy Co., as chairman.

Wednesday's meeting will be under the direction of Everett W. Lord, dean, Boston University College of Business Administration. E. C. Sams, president, J C Penney Co., will be chairman during the last day.

GANG LEADER OF GUNMEN HUNTED BY POLICE

Prisoners Said to Have Bared Plans for a Raid on Men's Clubroom

Four armed youths who confessed they had planned a holdup of a club in Chelsea were captured early today by Patrolman John Fahey of the Chelsea police, who held the men at bay with his revolver while he called aid with a police whistle.

The four men arrested gave their names as:

Luigi Camelia, 18, of Franklin st, Melrose, Earl S. Brown, 17, of Ferdinand st., Melrose Highlands; Arthur R. McPhee, 18, of Bow st., Stoneham and Amedio Ramonde, 20, of Lebanon st., Melrose.

In Chelsea district court, where the quartet was later arraigned, all four men were held until September 27 under bonds. Camelia, Brown and Ramonde are charged with conspiracy to commit robbery, and with having loaded revolvers in their possession. They were ordered held in $1000 on each charge. McPhee was charged with conspiracy and was held in $1000.

Police say the men confessed a plan to hold up a men's club and named the leader of the gang, for whom a search is being made.

TRAPPED IN AUTO

Patrolman Fahey was patrolling his beat near the Chelsea-Revere line when he approached an automobile, from which he heard a voice say, "Here comes a cop! Look out! Duck the stuff."

He saw three youths in the car and ordered them to throw up their hands, while he was holding them a fourth youth crossed the street and also was ordered to raise his hands.

CALLS FOR HELP

Blowing his police whistle, Fahey then held the quartet at bay until he was answered by Patrolmen John F. O'Neill and Theodore Freitas.

Sergt. George R. Finn arrived on the scene shortly after in the patrol wagon.

A search of the youths revealed two automatics, a pistol fully loaded and a toy pistol.

ELEANOR GREEN FIGHTS DEATH

Roxbury's "Little Soldier," Eleanor Green, is putting up a brave fight to ward off the overhanging shadow of death. Bedridden and with wracking pain, she manages a smile and cheery word to those who come to visit her, and her courage is not waning as her days of living become fewer.

Although Eleanor's birthday is long past, presents are still pouring into the Boston Evening American. Everybody seems to be making an effort to save the child, doomed to an early death.

Thieves Take Bikes of Dorchester Boys

Two 13-year-old Dorchester boys today appealed to police to help them recover their bicycles, which they say were stolen while boy were doing an errand at Codman sq., yesterday. The boys are Harold Bergenheim of 30 Chipman st, and John Dorsey of 51 Chipman st.

Everett Councillor Takes a Bride

Eugene L. Capuano, councilman of Ward 4, Everett, and Miss Drina Licel of Woodville st., Everett, were married today in St. Anthony's church. Fire Commissioner John J. Rocco was best man, and Miss Santino Bagarelli acted as maid of honor.

U. S. Ready to Probe Alleged Ballot Plot

An investigation of postcards, alleged to have been sent through the mails in Ward 21, Roxbury, announcing withdrawal of Martin Kelly, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for the nomination for representative, will be ordered if complaint is made to his office, Asst. U. S. Atty. Haven Parker announced today.

Kelly alleges the postcards, bearing the signature "Marty Kelly," urged his friends to vote for William F. Madden.

$100 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston American offers the opportunity. Each week $100 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news up? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $25 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $15 for the next best, $10 for the next best, two $5 prizes and $2 prizes for each of the 20 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

V.F.W. Show Planned for Tomorrow Night

A galaxy of headline vaudeville acts, led by Fritzi Scheff, musical comedy star, will feature the benefit concert to be held at the Boston Arena tomorrow night under the auspices of the Dorchester Post 496, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The proceeds of the concert will be turned over to the hospital and relief fund committee. The program will begin at 8 o'clock.

It is just a little gadget that fits on the end of the putter handle, and when it is placed over the ball the pallet is picked out of the cup and the dreaded stooping is eliminated. The mechanical pick-up idea was conceived by Dr. G. A. Snyder, of West Hollywood.

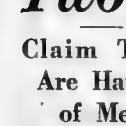
Two Girl Pals Protest Against Necking and Petting

Claim They Are Haters of Men

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We are writing in a few words to these lovesick girls who write daily to you. We, my girl friend and I, are absolutely man-haters. We think that girls are depending on men too much to have their good times. Girls can have a better time just by themselves. Why must girls go out for a good time nights and then pay it all back by letting the boys neck them. Some girls just love to be kissed. We get no kick out of it. Don't think we are snobs; we're modern 18-year-old girls.



Miss Fairfax

TWO PALS

Dear Pals: That's a nice little letter, but of course you don't have to be man-haters to adopt a sensible idea in regard to men, you know. The world must have men and women in order to get on. Girls have interests which boys do not have, and boys have interests in which girls can take no part, but when it comes to home-making and family raising, that's a double job and takes a mother and a father, and young folks should realize this and think and train themselves accordingly

Gets Her Jealous

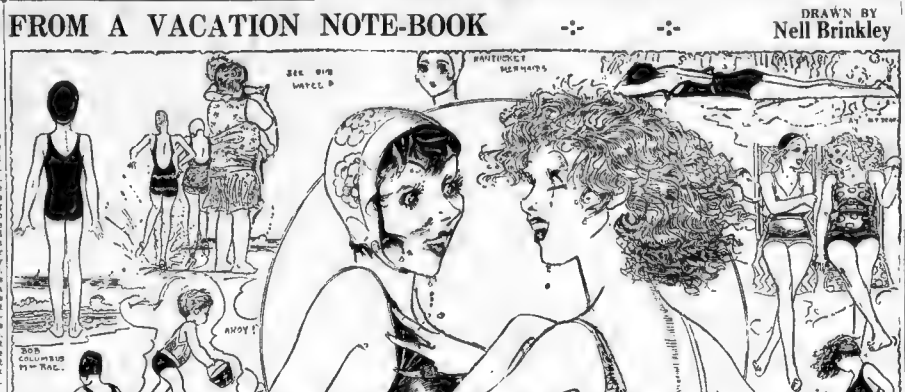
DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of 18 and a reader of your column. I am in love with a fellow of 20. He has told me that he cares for me and has often taken me out and given me good times. But this is my problem. Sometimes he likes to get me jealous by talking with a girl I know. There is no reason for trying to get me jealous. Should I stand for this and still go with him, or should I leave him? RUTH

Dear Ruth: To my mind, a young man who would try to inspire thoughts of jealousy is not worth bothering about, but it seems to be a more or less common habit, and very flattering to the boy.

FROM A VACATION NOTE-BOOK

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley



ALL THE WAY home from that one special vacation of the year a fellow looks back at the receding coast of Run-away-Place and heaves big sighs. That is, if he "chose right." Out of the pleased and happy throng of summer pilgrims there does stand out once in a while a soured family who chose wrong—and always does seem to choose wrong, and to come back with injuries instead of elations. But most of us have had "a MARvelous time," and hate to come home.

Hate to come home, until the last misty blue of Run-away-Place has faded, and we turn the key in our own look again. And then somehow it's MARvelous to be home again. You didn't know your house was this pretty, did you? Isn't the color of the living-room curtains lovely? And what a nice, big bathroom you HAVE got. You never knew the color of the kitchen linoleum was as really stunning. And the chins, and the glasses, and the cushions, and the perfectly luscious rugs. You didn't know that home was this beautiful. "Golly-gosh," says little Bill; "I didn't remember we had such a swell house!" "Home's pretty O. K., eh?" says BIG BILL. And the little Missus, seeing her own room for the first time in an aeon of a few weeks—just two, please, if you're no better off than me!—bubbles over and spills lavish words: "Bill, WILL you notice, when you come out of the ice-box—I know you've missed the ice-box, poor lamb—what a beautiful room we've got? Look at the array of possessions on my dressing-table—oh, Bill, we've had a beautiful time, but home is clover compared to every other place. I didn't know our house was so shiny before!"

Home is the shiningest place of all. Vacation seems so short that it is over by the time the ashes of your camp fire, where you made tea on the beach or the mountain, are cold. Only when you are home again do you find you have been gone a long, a long, a LONG time. Then home is dear; even ole WORK-WORK-WORK isn't the demon it seemed on the journey back and regrets are gone. Vacation-time goes down on the map with a circle around it as "another place we've been," and vacation unrest is in a state of coma until spring comes 'round again.

The artist-for-a-living swears he will not draw a stroke while he is gone; but the human shape and kind is the itch that he cannot resist, and so he—oy ache-scratches away. And here is one page from her note-book.

Roast Chicken Has Medals as Popular Dinner

By MARTHA LEE
Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Homemakers' Club of More Than 37,000

IT DOES seem that roast stuffed chicken wears most of the medals for popularity in the American household, and justly so, for I can think of no fish, fowl or beast that lends itself so kindly to the approval of all and sundry. Its tender meat can be eaten by the youngest and the oldest, and its savory flavor and stout "drum sticks" bring joy to the heart of the hungriest.

Martha Lee

You'd be surprised what a little variety in the dressing can work in one of these delicious and delicious taste sensations, too. Today's chicken is stuffed with French potato dressing, which runs close second in my affections with the old-fashioned chestnut stuffing of grandmotherly day. As you will see by casting your eye further down this page, Sunday's dinner features roast stuffed chicken, with baked sweet potatoes, green corn and stuffed celery as noble accompaniments.

Chicken is one of the meats that can be cooked to best advantages in a covered roaster. Roast beef, to my mind, is ruined when roasted covered. It is really more steamed than roasted. But for poultry roasting, get out your covered roaster, preheat the oven for 15 minutes at 475 deg. and then reduce to 350 deg. place your dressed, cleaned and seasoned chicken in the cooker with two tbsp. of fat and cook 20 minutes for each pound of bird. The stuffing is made as follows:

FRENCH POTATO STUFFING

Boil seven medium-sized potatoes and mash. Add salt and pepper to taste, one large, chopped onion, one tbsp. of poultry dressing, or thyme, if liked. The use of thyme instead of the usual poultry seasoning makes a delightfully different dressing. It is better to use finely powdered leaves of the herb which can be bought in some of the small Greek or Italian markets, but the powdered is commercially thyme is very good. Grind up the chicken giblets in a food chopper and cook slightly in a frying pan. Add to the potato mixture and mix well, moistening with milk if necessary. Stuff crop and body and sew with strong thread, dredge with flour and dot with bits of fat pork, or for extra tenderness and juiciness, rub all over generously with butter before flouring.

Here's a hint which you may find valuable for keeping the breast meat from getting dry. Put the bird on his side during the early part of the cooking, then turn breast up to finish. Laying the bird on his back causes the juice to run around to the under side, leaving the breast meat dry. If you use a covered roaster you will have to baste your chicken, but it is well to keep an eye on hers from time to time. A four-pound chicken requires two hours to roast. When the breast meat is tender the bird is done.

Sweet potatoes are baked like their white sisters. Select six even sized potatoes and place in a hot oven for three-quarters of an hour or until done, then reduce the heat and remove to a warmer until soft.

I'm sure everybody knows how to cook green corn, so we will just say one wee word about getting the corn as fresh as possible and boiling immediately. Mark Twain used to say the proper way to boil corn was to take a kettle of boiling water to the edge of the corn field and plunge your freshly picked corn in at once, but with farms so far away from our back yards we'd have to get Paul Revere Boots for the purpose.

And think of me when you eat your roast stuffed chicken, because that's what the Lee family is going to get for dinner tomorrow

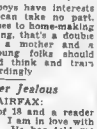
Listen, World! Is It Love?

How to Tell When You've Found It

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"AM I in love?"

Some day you'll ask yourself that question. Perhaps you have already asked it . . . and have been wondering ever since why you guessed the answer wrong.



Elsie Robinson

"But how can one know?" you say. "Is there any way to guess the answer right?"

Yes, there is. It is possible to know if you're really in love or just dizzy. It is also possible to know whether your "love" will be lasting and satisfactory—whether you and the loved one will be real partners. Nor need you buy a love philter to solve these mysteries. For they aren't mysteries . . . they are as simple as seed time and harvest and any man can find the answer if he has honesty and common sense, and enough courage not to blot himself.

How can you know if love is REAL, TEST IT BY YOUR ORDINARY LIFE. For remember, love is not a miraculous seizure set apart from all common experience. It is simply a part of life. It is your hungry spirit and your lonely body crying out for more life—for someone to complete your life. But no love can be help-ful and no person can help you complete your life unless that love and that person fit the pattern of life which you have already made. So, if you wish to test love, don't try to analyze your new ecstasy—look rather at the old pattern.

For 20, 30, 50 years you have been making that pattern. Your career may not have been all you desired, but, in the main, you expressed yourself and did what you wished. You developed certain likes and dislikes, certain habits and notions. You arranged to live life at a certain pace. You adopted certain methods. And with each year you've grown more set in your attitudes and ways.

Now, if you've lived that way for a third of your life, it's dollars to doughnuts you'll live that way until the end. Your work and environment may change, but you, yourself, will remain essentially the same. And it will be utterly foolish to bring into your life any arrangement which doesn't fit that fixed pattern.

DOES THIS NEW LOVE FIT THAT FIXED PATTERN?

You are, of course, tremendously excited and thrilled by it just now. But try and study it calmly. Does this new feeling flow easily with the old, established feelings? Does it quietly, happily enlarge your present life and program? Do you feel at home in it? If so, it is probably real and rich and you can safely take a chance on it.

But if you throw all your present life askew? Does it demand strange adjustments which are foreign to your established nature? Does it require that you become a gad-about when you have always been a stay-at-home? Does it expect you to be excitable, disorderly, a gad-about when you have always been calm, orderly, conventional, or vice-versa?

Above all, WHY DO YOU WANT THIS LOVE? Do you want it because it fits in with your normal desires and ambitions? Or because of its intoxication or power you think you can find an escape from your old weariness and worry? IF SO, BEWARE OF IT!

If you have the honesty, courage and common sense, you can test love by these questions. And if your love clicks with your life—go ahead. But if you find that it doesn't . . . if you find yourself making excuses and explanations in order to justify it . . . LOOK OUT! For if that is the case, what you're suffering from isn't love at all, partner. It's just a dose of emotional hives.

Telling About Your Dates With Boys

By MRS. C. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper to mention a very good boy friend, who calls on me quite frequently, the names of some of my other boy friends (whom he does not know) and when one of them invites me out, to mention later to him that "so-and-so" took me to "such-and-such a place" yesterday or last week, and so forth? MARY.

It's improper, when you do this causing. But nothing can get to be more boring than this species of "conversation." rn other words, don't dwell on this kind of news unless it has some interesting feature. If you do, you'll find yourself without friends—and how you'll deserve it!

Feminine Social Grafter

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me what is the proper behavior when a man meets a girl whom he knows in a restaurant, and eats lunch at the same table with her? Should the man pay for the girl's luncheon too? If your answer is yes, what does the man have to do when he meets a few girls? B.

A girl should distinctly not expect a man to pay her luncheon check when they meet in such a casual way in a restaurant. He pays her check only when he has invited her to have luncheon with him. And a girl who allows a man to pay her check under these circumstances, or who, for instance when she meets a man she knows on a train, takes it for granted that he is going to buy her ticket, is by way of becoming a social grafter. I should think her men friends would find it very expensive to meet. And a girl who allows a man to pay her check under these circumstances, or who, for instance when she meets a man she knows on a train, takes it for granted that he is going to buy her ticket, is by way of becoming a social grafter. I should think her men friends would find it very expensive to meet. And especially if she has a hearty appetite!

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.

DOUBLING FOR LOVE

Kit Camp suddenly appears and takes Judy in His arms to hold her forever.

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER 51

HE LEANED down, spoke tensely. "I can guess what they've said to you, Judy. It had to be this way. Will you believe this—that you're the dearest thing in the world? That I'd give my life rather than harm you? In spite of everything, it's true."

"Tris," she whispered, "will you kiss me?"

His arms went about her. "Little sweet . . . I'd do anything I'll get out of this jam—I've been in worse ones. We could go away. I'll begin again, and I'd be what you wanted, I swear it, Judy."

She said, "I'm so sorry. Nothing would make any difference—not even what I know now—if I cared enough. It's cared that way. Please understand."

"Of course, dear."

They stood at the rail watching the shore lights string along the horizon. Tris leaned forward suddenly, staring at the smoothly flowing sea.

"That's Long Island over there three miles—four, maybe . . . swam nearly across the Channel once. Did it on a bet" . . .

Fear clutched her heart. she cried, "Tris!"

Stood at Rail

"Why, it's nothing sweetheart." . . . He laughed, turned with a jaunty swing of his shoulders. "Nothing to fear—and what a break! That's the trouble with fellows like Birke; too sure of themselves. Afterward . . . well I'll drop you a line."

She did not try to dissuade him. She felt suddenly that he must do this, that he would get through "If you would see things differently," she murmured. "Turn a new leaf for your own sake."

"I'll take promising that. If I had you . . . well, don't regret this. Life's a pretty good old pal. You'll not be afraid for me? I've caused you trouble enough—rather stay and take the rap than hurt you."

"No—go, Tris. Darling—bless you—oh, good luck—"

He held her close, kissed away her tears. Then he was a shadow sliding over the rail, a ripple in the smooth gray of the sea.

She stood there a long time straining her eyes toward the lights. She felt no twinge of doubt. Tris would make the shore and slip away into liberty and she wanted that above everything.

She whispered "goodby" to the soft night and crept back to her cabin.

* * *

August lay in shimmering heat on Lyall—trimmed the fields with golden dahlias, set a flush upon hydrangeas, coaxed purple asters into bloom.

Held Her Close

Judy lay in a camp chair under the spruce hedge, very still, with her eyes closed. But she was not asleep; her dreams were all day dreams.

Capn Charley Mr. Blake—Montreal Quebec it all seemed far away now, like a story told and nearly forgotten. Yet it was only a month ago that she had come home to the same old round of living which never would be quite the same again.

Already Mrs. Rowe had sent out announcements of her daughter's coming wedding. Elizabeth Judson Rowe and LeRoy Morton Van man would be married the first of September and Judy was to be a bridesmaid.

And Peggy and Mr. Tennant were planning, rather secretly fearing to hurt her. They wished to be married at New Year's, yet Judy knew her mother hesitated on her account. If only . . . well . . .

Yesterday there had been a message from Vancouver. A few words hastily written: "Sailing within the week for Nagasaki with the memory of you a glory in my heart—loving you forever and forever—Judy, my sweet—"

Tris was free. In spite of the hue and cry that followed his disappearance . . . he was free. The knowledge of this brought Judy a still, glad happiness.

But her heart was not with Tris Millet. Ever and ever it kept turning toward another memory—another figure. A tall boy—proud youngster with a grave mouth and sea green eyes.

What a fool she had been!

She wondered if Kit Camp had found his cottage and garden.

Once she had longed for a career, for stately independence. She had entertained stupid ideas about women's place in the world. As if any woman wanted independence if she could have love! A cottage and garden—that would be career enough for any girl if there were a certain some one to sit by the hearth . . .

Too late. If she had known what she knew now . . . That was the thought to weigh the heart, to dim the sunshine. Happiness wit' her hands and she had tossed it away.

Sometimes she fancied that Peggy guessed how she felt.

Peggy never mentioned Kit Camp, yet Judy was sure she knew. Indeed Peggy had become rather mysterious of late with whispered telephoning and flimsy excuses to meet the postman at the gate.

Wore White Crepe

And this afternoon Peggy had insisted that Judy put on the white crepe she had worn in Montreal, though there was no reason for dressing up. Peggy had kept looking at the clock, finally almost pushing Judy out of the house.

"Go out under the trees, lamb. No, put this yellow scarf on ——"

"Don't need a scarf. What's got into you, mother?"

"Be a good child and don't ask questions. Now don't you stir till I call you . . ."

There was a step on the gravel. Judy raised her head and was looking into green eyes all a-shimmer with laughter

"Judy, my dear dear are you glad I've come?"

"Kit!" She was in his arms; the day which had been dull emptiness blazed with radiance. "Oh, I've missed you so! Kit, dearest!" And after a long time, "You'll not leave me again?"

He said "Never! We'll be together," he told her with a husky flutter of laughter, "from now on! You and I and all the love there is."

Care of Bed-Ridden Invalid

Important to Change Position Often

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

TOO often it happens in our homes that some member of the family, as the result of illness or accident, is in bed for a long period of time. If the invalid is to be spared the suffering that is kept in one position, he must be able to develop.

Dr. Copeland

The health of the patient depends on the free circulation of the blood, and it is to be firm and nearly the whole body must be plentifully supplied with blood at all times. Bed-sores are due to the death of the skin because of interference with the blood supply.

The first bad sign is redness of the parts. This may be followed by swelling. Next we notice that the skin becomes soft and it may come away in a mass. Underneath is damaged surface is found an open ulcer.

The ulcerated area spreads and deepens. It may extend right down to the bone.

The important thing in caring for a bed-ridden patient is to change the position frequently. If he is heavy, you must provide a number of small pillows. These are placed under the body so that pressure may be taken off any congested spot.

All prominent or bony parts of the back and sides should be washed night and morning with soapy water and thoroughly dried. Follow this by rubbing with alcohol, or any stimulating solution, to improve the circulation. After rubbing carefully, dust the parts well with starch, sterate of zinc, or talcum powder.

Cleanliness is of the greatest importance. Also it is necessary to keep the skin dry, because moist e softens the skin and helps to bring on trouble.

The Beauty Box -:- By Helen Follett

FOR THE sake of her complexion, her hair and her lungs, the boss of the household should avoid clouds of dust. With carpet sweeper and vacuum cleaner there is no need of kicking up dirt. When wiping furniture use a dusting mitt or an oiled cloth. Keep the hair covered. A reliable hand lotion should be used twice a day by the busy bee who must keep her domestic hive in order. A dish mop saves the texture of the skin surface on the hands.

Freckles may be permanent settlers or they may sneak up on you some fine day and surprise you. The scientific name for them is lentigo but that doesn't make a speckled gal like them any better. They are caused by wind and sunlight. To battle with them the fight must continue; they will return on exposure. Keeping the skin oiled is a safeguard. An oiled skin do not burn

Here's 'Mental Cocktail'; Not for Pessimists

What Has Happened Before in America and Will Happen Again

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Sept. 20

"This message is not for pessimists. Pessimists are cowards."

So writes an old friend, C. E. Knoepfel, well known industrial counsel, who urges "Let's ex cite the sweat glands." He sends to this column what he calls a "mental cocktail" for those who are in "red" or "dull" black mood.

You will, I think, relish it.

Here it is:

In 1900 our population was 50,155,783. In 1930 it is 123,000,000. This increase of 146 per cent in 50 years is an increase of 2.92 per cent each year.

B. C. Forbes

In 1900 our wealth was $86,317,307,000. In 1930 it is $400,000,000,000 (estimated). This increase of 352 per cent in 30 years is an average of 11.73 per cent yearly.

What this will mean in 1940 and 1960, if history repeats itself, can be seen from the following:

	1930	1940	1960
Population	123,000,000	146,160,000	173,640,000

Purchasing power is on the increase. The Hoover report, "Recent Economic Changes," says that productivity has increased 34.5 per cent, with an 11.4 per cent increase in wages, and a 24.5 per cent decrease in unit costs.

A year like 1930 is nothing to go by, anyway. Over a period of 120 years there have been 32 cycle movements, the average of the swings being four years each, with the largest number of years taking three years each. The thing to do is to consider the three to four year swings.

Keep in mind that we have 123,000,000 people eating food, clothing and shelter as daily needs and radios, automobiles, washing machines, and a thousand other things as wants. These needs and wants must be supplied in ever-increasing volume, due to our growth.

This will all mean: More machines to make more machines; less women's wages and smaller tires per person; better methods of production and especially selling; better and higher standards of living; fewer hours of work; more leisure time to enjoy the greater volume of goods produced; ever-widening markets; new processes flowing from research; entirely new industries and many other benefits.

A pessimist under the conditions above described, is an apostle of gloom, for the present moment of our entire history is about us.

This message is not for pessimists. Pessimists are cowards. Even if they read it, they couldn't be induced to do anything about it, because to them the condition is hopeless. As the president of a large company wrote us:

"They really ready for the situation is more sales, which, of course, would mean more profits. But people in our industry are not such that sales can be increased."

Did you ever read a finer bit of hopelessness?

More sales alone is not the remedy, nor does it follow that greater profits flow from larger sales. Who makes the "conditions in the country"?

* * *

Now, with optimists it is different. They go into a huddle about the ways out of the situation, and emerge with an idea that results in profits. The spirit of this is the fist of "blue ribbon" winners showing better profit records for the first half of this year over the first half of 1929.

These, like the French at the Marne, say to dividends, "They shall not be passed."

The optimists are even now planning for 1931, studying markets, redesigning products, rearranging plants, looking up for the future, researching, developing new lines, soliciting ideas from personnel, eliminating waste, and getting ready for the good times which Anos never yet failed to come to the great and growing country.

These are the ones who are exercising their "sweat" glands.

Optimists welcome days like these. They provide glorious opportunities to create, develop, tighten the belt, plan for the future, and through wise management get an entire personnel to swing out over the common enemy, red ink.

* * *

If, by any chance, some pessimist should happen to read this, let him think it over for 10 minutes and then throw the blue pencil away!

Urges Anti-Knock Be Standardized

G. W. Vaughan, president of Wright Aeronautical Corp., declares that if petroleum producers standardized their grades of anti-knock fuel they could reduce aircraft operation costs. He expresses the opinion the Department of Commerce or other governmental organization should take the lead in such standardization.

EXTRA MARKET HOLIDAY TO BE SOUGHT

By FRANK B. MELOON

An extra market holiday is to be sought by New York Stock Exchange members. Closing of the exchange on Saturday, Oct. 11, the day preceding Columbus Day, will be asked for. Should it be granted, the Boston Stock Exchange will also be closed. So far this year extra holidays have been freely granted, and several extensions of week-end holidays have been allowed.

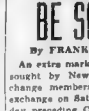
William Cameron Forbes, prominent Massachusetts leader, resigning as a director of American Telephone, severs the official connection of his family with the big communications company that has continued since the incorporation in 1879, when the Western Union officials refused to buy patent rights. Their refusal showed one of the outstanding examples of lack of vision by reputed leaders of the period.



Wm. Cameron Forbes

Chauncey Depew declared his mistake in judgment when he refused to participate in building up the telephone cost him $30,000,000. Others who turned down the project were less frank.

One big brokerage house gleans the following under the caption of "Remarkable But Apparently":

"A man fails usually because he isn't well balanced."—Homer Martin.

"There is no such thing as IN-COME without OUTPUT."— Herbert Hoover.

"The continuance of prosperity depends upon an equitable distribution of it."—George E. Roberts, Vice-President, National City Bank of New York.

"There is nothing to put them down, and the ease of money is almost a guarantee of higher prices for these securities when pay interest or dividends."—Theodore Price.

"Holders of stocks either have paid for them outright, or they are so well margined that no temporary reaction will induce their owners to part with them."—Ernest Pool.

There is an increasing tendency on the part of those who write about the future to depart from the long established "bull and bear" comment, and to liken the market in various periods to the theater motion. The influence of the American's Cup races is found, for example, in the following comment from Yale sources:

"It would seem as though trad-ers were waiting to see whether the vagrant airs that have stirred th market sails during the summer will develop with full business into a cold east wind of further depression or a decidedly favoring breeze."

A prescription for prosperity, "If you have a job give a job," has just been prepared by George H. Corliss, advertising manager of the S. A. Woods Machine Company of Boston and director of publicity of the National Association of Woodworking Machinery Manufacturers, for publication in the various woodworking and lumber publications. This same slogan could be broadcasted by every industry as well as by every individual, with equal benefit. Mr. Corliss in the full page devoted to this prosperity slogan goes on to say:

"If the millions of people in this country whose jobs and income have been impaired by the business depression could now be induced to 'give a job if you have a job,' a vast reservoir of employment would be tapped and the trying times for many of our people would suddenly end. We can hasten the end of the present depression by urging all the people with whom we come in contact to adopt this slogan and the help you give now will be a source of everlasting satisfaction to you later on."

Roofing Material Prices Advanced

Prices of roofing materials, which had been soft for some time, have lately taken a turn for the better with the leading factors advancing prices. This change comes at a time when leaders in some other lines are still talking price shading.

The Flintkote Co., which put into effect a substantial rise in prices on August 17 on a portion of its lines, is now following with an advance on balance of the lines not covered by the Flintkote-wide. The increase approximates 10 per cent on all roofing products and has been very well received by the trade.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

There is no denying that the market's own inability to sustain its price level has been its own worst enemy. Many powerful interests, particularly speculative factors of importance, have become thoroughly discouraged and have contributed to the outpouring of stocks. This sort of selling represented surrender in the "race against time." The buying had been lone in the hopes that actual business betterment of sufficient degree to encourage holding stocks would have developed by this time. Instead, only psychologically has great improvement occurred in business.

The former bullishly-inclined speculators therefore have virtually retired from the market, at least temporarily. Some have joined the bear crowd. The latter of course have been unusually aggressive of late but without assistance of selling by discouraged holders they hardly could have attained the degree of success reflected in the price setback.

Montgomery-Ward Dividend Outlook

Officials of Montgomery Ward are disappointed in the failure of business to show anticipated improvement, as a result, safety of its dividend is surrounded by greater doubt than ever before. The stock is discounting unfavorable action.

Westinghouse Bear Target

Weakness in Westinghouse Electric represented victory for one of the most active bear groups who have selected this issue as a particular target. There is an enormous short interest in the stock.

Quiet Buying in Missouri Pacific

Notably persistent demand exists for Missouri Pacific despite continued discouraging railroad statistics. This road will probably figure in any resumption of railroad consolidation movement.

U. S. Rubber and Price Agreement

U S Rubber declined to a new low item after withstanding what it is certain to be one of the principal beneficiaries from settlement of the "price war" among the tire manufacturers.

Jersey S. O. Yield Near 4 P. C.

More encouraging reports of underlying conditions in the industry failed to influence Standard Oil of New Jersey stock. It has sold down close to a price where the yield would be 4 per cent.

Sears Roebuck Accumulation

Accumulation in Sears Roebuck is based on the assumption that business of the company will be stimulated by an aggressive sales campaign to be inaugurated coincident with the celebration of its anniversary week. Efforts will be made to place next week's business at a new peak through an intensive sales campaign. Incidentally, interests close to the company believe that operations during the balance of the year will make a favorable showing and a turn for the better already has set in. Furthermore, the elimination of prepaid freight payments several months ago is beginning to be reflected in the operations of the company.

Bear Leaders Are Aggressive

"Sell 'Em" Ben Smith and "Rad Bill" Danforth, leaders of the two largest bear cliques, became more aggressive in their operations, succeeding in breaking previous resistance points. Large blocks of leading stocks were sold by these operators and their associates and they were quoted as predicting that the market would break this June lows. Despite the success of the recent bear drives, however, it was evident that important scale down accumulation was taking place for leading bank interests in the "Street."

Bankers Buying on a Scale-Down

Bankers evidently were taking advantage of the drop in high grade stocks to increase their holdings. This is in line with the views expressed by one prominent private banker to this writer that he was "bullish on high grade stocks." It was evident, however, that the most of the buying took place on scale-down bids that have been in the market. Bankers apparently showed little disposition to increase their investments on rallies.

Rail Earnings to Show Poorly

Railroad earnings to be published next week will mostly make an unfavorable comparison with the preceding month and with the same month last year.

Scale Buying of Can Noted

Excellent scale down buying of American Can was reported for the account of banking interests identified with the company's management.

Westinghouse Under Pressure

Disappointing showing of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing thus far in the current year is attracting increased liquidation. During the first half of the year earnings amounted to $3.13 a share on the common, as contrasted with $4.93 a share in the corresponding period in 1929. Net income during the third quarter a year ago amounted to $2.40 a share on the common, but it is doubtful if the company will earn half as much in the same period this year.

Interests close to the company predict that earnings during the current year will exceed dividend requirements on the common stock by only a small margin. However, there is little likelihood that a change will be made in the dividend rate.

Northwestern Pays From Surplus

Chicago & Northwestern is one of the railroads which will be compelled to take part of its annual dividend of $5 a share from its surplus. Indications are that the road will show revenues of around $4 a share on its common stock in the current year. It is only one of the companies which is likely to maintain distributions by dipping into accumulated surplus.

Switching From Illinois Central

In the last few days several observers have included Illinois Central in the group of stocks from which switching was recommended. Estimates are that the road will earn approximately $6 a share in the current year. With little indication of early improvement in the prosperity of the carrier, the feeling has been that a switch into some other railroad would be logical. Rock Island, which has been mentioned as one of the stocks which could be taken to replace holdings of Illinois Central.

Remington-Rand Earnings Off

It is a foregone conclusion that earnings of Remington-Rand for the six months ended Sept. 30, the first half of its fiscal year, will compare unfavorably with those of the corresponding period in 1929, due to the general business conditions. However, interests in the company point out that normally the first six months is a period of poor earnings, and a vast improvement in conditions before the end of next March probably would result in a increase in earnings in the second half over the period just about to close.

BOSTON STOCK PRICES MIXED ON WEEK-END

Boston Stock Exchange prices showed a mixed tone in week-end transactions. Boston Elevated moved 3¼ at 79¾. American Telephone was up 2¼ at 212¼.

Old Colony Railroad sagged 2 at 140 Sullivan Machinery was down 1¾ at 42¾.

Pacific Mills was active, but unchanged at 22.

Trading in the strictly local issues was almost at a standstill during the short session.

Pennsylvania R. R. applied for Commerce Commission's authority to assume obligation and liability in respect of bonds totaling $22,017,000 of Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis and Cleveland & Pittsburgh.

Pres. Morton of Teletype Corp., purchase of which has been announced by American Telephone & Telegraph Co., says sales of Teletype Corp. totaled about $12,000,000 in 1929 and will be increased under that this year. He stated also that on Sept. 8 the foreign business of the company was sold to a subsidiary of International Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Bonds of German Republic Firm Up

New York, Sept. 20—Bonds of the German Republic firmed today in a reversal of trend from yesterday's session. Selling continued in some other issues. While German 7s and the International 5½s showed moderate strength, German Central Agricultural Bank 6s of July, 1960, and Rhine Westphalian 6s of 1952 lost more than a point, the former registering a new 1930 low. The Bank 6s of October, 1960, also were depressed.

$3,000,000 in Gold Shipped to Italy

New York, Sept. 20—Banca Commerciale Italiana shipped $3,000,000 gold to a correspondent bank in Italy Friday, first consignment to Italy this year. Little else closed 5 2-32¾ cents, several points below the gold export point. Theory advanced is that Bank of Italy or the Italian government might be withdrawing gold balances in order to build up its reserves.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

MILD RECOVERY IS STAGED IN WALL STREET TRADING

New York, Sept 20—Although the stock market recovered its equilibrium today, it failed to show much confidence, closing prices held at or slightly above yesterday's final quotations

Further selling during the first half hour, representing accumulation of overnight orders, depressed the dealers a point or so, especially the steels and utilities.

BEARS LOSE COURAGE

Bearish professionals, fearing an overaold condition, became hesitant and prices reversed their course

Trading became slightly more active one the rally and the favorites were bid up from one to two points, but the advance was reduced on late profit taking Sales were about 850,000 shares

U. S. Steel, after being about 1½ higher, closed with a gain of 1. American Can rose ⅝ net, Woolworth ½ and Radio, General Motors, General Electric and Public Service of New Jersey showed smaller improvement.

American Telephone held a one point rally and there were similar net advances in Gillette, Consolidated Gas, A. M. Byers and Electric Auto-Lite. Case was up 3 points. Westinghouse Electric finished ⅝, lower after having more than recovered an early drop of more than a point.

Weekly trade reviews were moderately cheerful, although they pointed out that numerous gains had not been extended above the levels established a fortnight ago.

The department of commerce's summary of business activity reported a 6 per cent gain in the week ended September 6, as measured by bank debits outside New York city and said that wholesale prices had shown little change.

CONDITIONS IMPROVE

Heads of three national trade organizations here—the Garment Retailers of America, the Associated Press Industries and the National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Associations—informed the National Business Survey Conference that conditions were improving.

Good fall business was noted in ready-to-wear apparel and production in some lines was said to be behind consumption.

Estimates of steel production in the Youngstown district for next week said that so far no change in operating ratios was indicated.

So far the steel industry has been receiving much support from pipe line purchases, but the peak of this demand is believed to have been passed and the trade is awaiting a revival of orders from automobile manufacturers.

In this connection, a review of General Motors factory and retail sales since May showed that stocks of unsold cars had been depleted in recent months and it was pointed out that this situation should result in something of a shortage when public demand improved.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company plant operations will be unchanged at 53 per cent of capacity in the Youngstown district next week.

Pipe production for Youngstown Sheet & Tube continues at a high rate

Carnegie Steel Company reports operations unchanged at 55 per cent for mills in this district, although one less blast furnace will be melting than a week ago.

SPECTATOR'S FAVORITES

In reviewing the action of the market over the past fortnight, it is pertinent to note that the advance, which was apparently blind swing in early September, was expected to continue until October. The concensus of opinion at this time in financial quarters was that the publication of the third quarter earnings statements would somewhat of a damper on the upturn and that some setback would be witnessed

Rail Stocks

The current setback in the carrier group, reflecting in part the poor earnings expected for August, should be used as an opportunity for accumulation of sound railroad issues, in the opinion of one of the trading statistical organizations. Stocks which are considered particularly desirable because of their ability in achieving and holding market gains are Bangor & Aroostook, Chesapeake Corporation, Chesapeake & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson, Kansas City Southern and Texas & Pacific. The following rail issues are also pointed to as holding interesting possibilities because of conspicuous stability of earnings, and their receiving better than average market support. Atchison Missouri, Kansas & Texas, Missouri Pacific, New Haven, Reading, Union Pacific and Western Maryland."

Columbia Gasand Electric

Aggressive expansion of this company's vast natural gas resources have accounted for the relatively high earnings of recent months in recent sessions. Reports state that Columbia Gas is now reaching toward the Eastern seaboard with four main trunk lines covering the area from New York city to Washington. The development toward the West contemplates an interest in a 1200-mile pipe line from Texas to Indianapolis. There is great potentiality in the new territories served by this expanded system, and there is no other system approaching it in size in the United States. While the stock is considered liberally valued in view of [illegible] for the year ended June 30 equal to but $2.05 per share, its promising future gives the stock attractive possibilities for appreciation. The annual cash dividend of $2 provides an return of about 3 per cent.

New Bids Asked on L St. Bathhouse

New bids for the constructing of the proposed $350,000 L st. bathhouse were called for yesterday by Mayor Curley upon learning that the contractors had demanded more than the appropriation

At the conference held at the mayor's office, the mayor with Chairman William P. Long of the Park & Commission, City Auditor Rupert S. Carven and Architect John M. Gray, it was decided that exact cost instead of a lumpsum would be used in the construction of the new fireproof bathhouse to encourage local business.

MANCUSO HITS 2 HOMERS FOR CARDS

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Help, Jack! They're Pushin' Us Off Map!

Our Sharkey Man Boston Thinks Squire a Cinch ↑

Over Campolo We Own Up A "Bum" Story ↓

Circulating among the students of the manly art of scrambling ears down in the big Garden, last night, we sounded 'em on next Thursday night's duel in New York between our Squire Sharkey of Chestnut Hills and Senor Vittorio Maria Campolo of Avenido de Mayo, Buenos Aires. In the tidal waves of international tennis, polo, yachting, the cockle of the heart warming baseball race, the advent of King Football, the tercentenary sports doings and what not, the Sharkey-Campolo fuss has been sort o' crowded into a corner all by its lonesome. That ain't doin' right by our Nell! No Sir and M'am. All the world loves a heavyweight shindy and we Bostonians are particularly interested in Mister Sharkey. With our Braves playing like cigar store Indians, the Red Sox excavating in the lowermost depths of the American League, winter and the return of the Bruins still weeks away, Boston would be completely shoved off the sports map if it wasn't for our Sharkey man.

If the views of the fans we fanned with in the Garden furnishes a consensus, Boston is unanimously of the opinion that Mister Sharkey isn't going to let the Big Backache of Buenos Aires shove our City of Culture and Cod off the sports map. In vain we argued, in vain we pleaded.

George Underwood

Not a mother's son would own up to believing that Senor Campolo had any better chance than a snowball in, eh, Ecuador.

"This Campolo feller," we remarked to the esteemed Eddie Mack of the Kerry Village Macks, "like Cassius, has a lean and hungry look. Such men, as the great Shakespeare said, are dangerous."

"Ooinell did that guy Shakespeare ever lick?" snorted Eddie. "What league did he ever bust the fences in?"

Well Avon Bill, Eddie, knew plenty about rasslin'. In his "As You Like it," Bill made Charles The Wrestler toss the match. The rasslers have been tossin' 'em ever since. (Gosh! Now we'll have Gus Somzelera, Paul Boesel and "Doc" Brown on our trail! Help, Gang, Help!)

But getting down to the hole in the doughnut Boston in South Boston parlance thinks Campolo is a "bum."

NAUGHTY! NAUGHTY!

That isn't a nice word. But we've heard some of the greatest fighters in the world called the selfsame thing. A rose by any other name would be just as sweet. But when anyone calls Senor Campolo such naughty, naughty names they are putting him in the same class with the great Jim Jeffries and Jack Dempsey.

We stood in the training quarters at Atchenhurst when Jim Jeffries was training for his world's heavyweight championship fight with Bob Fitzsimmons and heard roughnecks declare:

"Why that big bum lick Fitz? Not a chance!"

We were in the late John the Barber's Harlem Sporting Club the night Jack Dempsey made such a sorry showing against John Lester Johnson and heard the gallery roar:

"Throw that big bum Dempsey out! He can't fight a lick!"

Was it any wonder Dempsey shook the dust of the Big City, riding the rods out of New York for the wide open spaces, vowing never to return?

Yet two years later "that big bum Dempsey" returned to New York in a parlor car to draw a record breaking crowd and a record wrecking gate across the Hudson in Boyle's Thirty Acres with Georges Carpentier.

Jeffries and Dempsey are not the only great heavyweights we have heard called "bums." Almost every heavyweight we have ever seen "looked bad" in the early stages of his career. Heavyweights are a peculiar kind of a fistic bird. They often blossom overnight. You can't use the same criterion in judging heavyweights you do lighter fighters. You don't look for the big fellows to show their stuff as early as the smaller men. It takes something more than a heart and a punch to win a championship in the lighter divisions. Several heavyweight champions, including Jeffries and Dempsey, scaled the heights with those two assets alone.

OTHER FOREIGN GENT

Not so long ago we were fanning with the fistic mob on Carnera. One of the allegedly wisest of the gentry declared the Italian giant never would make good, if for nothing else than he lacked one prime ring requisite alone. We asked what it was.

"Why the big bum"—there's that word once again—"hasn't a snappy punch," was the reply. "He just shoves and pushes."

"Hasn't a snappy punch"—Oh, piffle! What difference does it make as long as the shove or push is strong enough to push an opponent off his feet? Poosh 'em down, Tony, often enough and you'll keep 'em down for 10.

Whether a punch is snappy or not, being "pushed" off ones feet in the squared circle is most discouraging. A big boulder of a fist like Carnera's at one end of an arm as long and thick as a steamboat's walking beam, and with 260 pounds of solid bone and muscle at the other end, doesn't have to be "snapped" in to do damage. Just having that monstrous maulie, which is about the same size as a sugarcured ham, thrust in one's handsome face for round after round is most annoying, Archibald, most annoying. . . .

"Campolo is only getting $7500 for fighting Sharkey," one Garden fan remarked to us. "A guy only getting that money can't be any good."

No?

When Jack Dempsey first came to New York the Manassa Mauler had a lot more fights under his belt than has the Big Beanpole of the Argentine. Manassa Jack had fought from two to three times as often as has Vittorio Maria.

Dempsey fought ten terrific rounds with the giant Andre Anderson in New York. What do you think he was paid?

$16.00. Yes—S-i-x-t-e-e-n dollars.

In the same old car barns where the old Fairmont A. C. held forth in the Bronx Dempsey went ten more slashing rounds with Wild Burt Kenney. The Killer who later so developed into the greatest attraction sport ever knew this time received the munificent sum of $45.

Think of it, for two terrific ten round bouts in New York, Jack Dempsey, the great Dempsey, was paid a total of fifty-nine dollars.

So don't sneeze at Vittorio Maria Campolo getting a mere $7500 for scrapping with our Sharkey man.

Is it wise to call the good Senor Campolo, big a Back Ache as he seems, a "bum," until after next Thursday night? The Big Back Ache of Buenos Aires may prove the same kind of a "bum" as Jeffries and Dempsey.

Eli Regulars Run Riot Over Scrubs

New Haven, Sept. 20—Yale's first-string football team took to the air in its first scrimmage of the season to defeat a scrub aggregation, 33 to 0. Four of the five touchdowns were made via the forward pass route with John Madden, a new figure in varsity football, carrying the ball over the line twice and Tommy Taylor, southpaw back, and Al Beane on the receiving ends of other scoring passes. The fifth touchdown came as the result of a 40-yard run by Sandy Weiner, erstwhile tennis star.

Albie Booth, chunky little quarterback, failed to score and did little in the forward passing game, but made consistent gains in running attacks from midfield.

Big Boy Kayoes Dixon in 1st Round

Dover, N. H., Sept. 19—Big Boy Rawson of Boston knocked out Tiger Tom Dixon of this city in the first round. In the semifinal Bob Cecchetti of Millbury beat John Russell, Portland. John Miltus, Dover, beat Young Parro, Concord, in six rounds. Lamberton Rodriguez knocked Young Naples, three rounds; Don Colby kayoed Leo Tierrie, Sanford, one round.

Chevalier to Fight Maloney at Garden

Matchmaker MacLean has closed the deal which will bring Leon "Bombo" Chevalier of Oakland, Cal., here for a fight with Jim Maloney. The bout will be staged at the Garden the night of October 7. Chevalier is the chap who made Primo Carnera look like a set-up. In connection with their melee in California, the affair finally resulting in the ban of the California commission.

Jones Returns to Scene of Boyhood Conquests

Philadelphia, Sept. 20 (AP)—Bobby Jones will be busy next week seeking an unprecedented climax to the golf season on a course that already has marked several highlights of his career.

The national amateur championship will be played at the Merion Cricket Club, where in 1916 a boy first dazzled the nation by his skill, and where in 1924 that boy, become a young man, first won the national amateur championship after many disappointments. Having won the British amateur and open and the American open already this year, Bobby has a chance to be the first to wear the quadruple crown.

Qualifying play of 36 holes, one round Monday and another Tuesday, will determine 32 participants in match play. There will be two match play rounds at 18 holes Wednesday and thereafter 36-hole rounds, with the final on next Saturday. Bobby fears nothing much except the 18-hole matches.

Bobby slipped away yesterday, primarily to escape the eager-eyed galleyites, and shot a round at the Pine Valley Club in New Jersey, but his program today called for a final tuning up over the Merion championship east course.

Gallery Keeps on Jones' Heels

The mere statement that Bobby was to practice at Merion was sufficient to create plenty of interest, but his appearance late today will be more glamorous because he is to play in a foursome that will include the present United States amateur champion and the two former holders of the crown.

Paired with Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, who will defend the national championship in the impending "big show," Jones is to compete against Jess Sweetser, champion in 1922, and Max Marston, titleholder in 1923. The famed foursome is to tee off at 2:30 p. m., and extra precautions have been taken to limit the size of the gallery so the big four may have a chance to get in some real practice.

Unless they can show proper credentials, no one will be permitted to go on the course to watch any of the stars in their prepping trips.

Gibson Dunbar, Jr., California, burned up the course yesterday with a 35-32—67, equalling the course record.

Eddie Held, New York, former national public links champion, made the next best score in practice to date, turning in a 68 last Sunday.

Three other golfing greats shot sub-par of 69. One of these was Jesse Guilford, Boston terrific driver, who lifted the national championship in 1921. The former farmer boy's score was noteworthy because it was his first trip around the Merion course in six years.

The two others who achieved totals of one stroke better than theoretical perfection were George Von Elm, Los Angeles, and Francis Brown, the "flying Hawaiian," who holds the Hawaiian, the Japanese and the California amateur titles.

Champion "Jimmy" Johnston notched two 73's, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon.

Down at Pine Valley, Jones, paired with Dale Bourn, British star, lost a best ball match to Jess Sweetser and Cyril Tolley by the margin of one hole. Bobby was out in 38, three over par, and back in 36, one over par.

B. U. 11 PICKED TO MEET ARMY

Boston University's lineup for the opening game with West Point next Saturday has been selected by Coach Mahaney and is made up of four of last year's regulars, two substitute lettermen and five newcomers.

The Terriers will take the field against the Army with Lou Cullough and Sammy Goldman at the ends; Lee Stone and Lou Lobel at tackles; Danny Harrington and Jimmy Truden, guards, and Luther Hewes, center. Capt. Santo Marino will call the signals, Tommy Leguera and Phil Hootstein will play the halfbacks and Emil Ober will be stationed at fullback.

Both MacCullough and Goldman won their letters last year as substitute ends, but they should be able to hold down the regular jobs with ease this year. MacCullough now has three years of experience and, with his added weight, will take care of his end of the line easily, and Goldman is also expected to have a great season.

Lou Lobel and Lee Stone were both regular tackles last year and should do even better this season. Although they will start the West Point game, one of them will be shifted to another line position when Jim Marks, former Holy Cross star, rounds into shape.

Nurmi Finishes First in 5000-Meter Race

Warsaw, Sept 20—Paavo Nurmi, Finnish distance runner, won a 5000-meter run here from Kosseniski and Stanislaus Petkiewicz in 14 minutes, 54 seconds, far behind his own world's record for the distance.

Kosseniski was one and six-tenths second behind the Finn, with Petkiewicz outdistanced, 26 seconds behind Nurmi.

Varsity Eleven Crushes B. C. Freshmen, 46 to 0

The strength of the Boston College varsity was shown today when it overwhelmed the B. C. freshman eleven, 46 to 0.

In a scrimmage that lasted almost two hours under a burning sun the Eagle varsity plowed its way down the field against the yearlings.

Dixon took up the punting where he left off last season. When the varsity was forced to kick immediately after the first kickoff Johnny booted one for 50 yards and the safety man was dropped in his tracks by a savage tackle by Henry Buckley. Kelly, the freshman fullback, immediately returned the kick and then the varsity began to function.

Vodokiys made five and Mallet a first down. Kelly went through center for a couple. Vodokiys skirted left end for 20 and when a pass from Kelly to Buckley failed Vodokiys tore off seven and five for another first down.

Frosh Tackle Recovers Fumble

Edzmund, freshman tackle, recovered a fumble on the five-yard line, putting the first-year team out of danger for the moment. Kelly kicked short to the 27-yard line, where Velho flattened Joe Kelly.

Joe Kelly was stopped at the line. A pass from Vodokiys to Dixon brought the ball to the three-yard line. This time the varsity was not to be denied and Vodokiys went over for the touchdown and then place-kicked the goal.

O'Brien kicked off to Boehner, who ran back 10 yards. Vodokiys made 12 through right tackle and then tossed a forward to Boehner for 10 yards, placing the ball on the 49-yard line.

The freshmen proved stubborn and when they in turn were forced to kick Billy Boehner pulled off the first of his starling runs. He dodged three tacklers who were already upon him when he caught the punt and was not downed until he had covered 25 yards.

His second and third runbacks came a few minutes later when the varsity had lost the ball on downs. Frietas, the yearling quarter who had been booting them well, kicked one so far that his ends could not get down fast enough to cover it and Boehner got away for 30 yards.

Referee Bill Ormsby ruled offside against the varsity and Freitas accepted the penalty. Freitas got off another long one and this time Boehner was away like a flash, dodged and twisted until almost every freshman on the field had taken a shot at him. He was cornered on the sideline after a gain of 42 yards.

Second Varsity Enters Battle

Here Colbert's team relieved the first varsity. In the backfield with him were Antos, Marr and Callery, Antos went around right end for twenty. Antos made eight more and Marr first down. The old passing combination, Colbert to Antos, went into action and collected twenty-five yards more. Colbert went over for the touchdown on a reverse play which fooled the freshman completely. Colbert missed the goal.

The freshmen again kicked off and on the first play Colbert crossed them up by booting the ball over the goal line from his own forty. Gallagher blocked Moynahan's kick which was recovered by Heggie who scored. The point after was granted the varsity when the freshmen were offside.

Marr returned the kickoff to his own thirty-eight yard line. Marr and Gallery picked up seven yards apiece. Callery tossed a pass to Eddie Gallagher who gained. Chessy Antos slipped off the end for thirty-five yards and another score.

The third varsity then entered the game. Tost, left end, recovered a fumble on the nine-yard line and Tom O'Brien went over. Ricci failed in an attempt for the goal.

The freshmen recovered their own kickoff on the varsity 40-yard line. Harrington kicked outside on the five-yard marker. Walter Kelley, standing behind his own goal line, booted the ball 60 yards out. Harrington returned it 20 yards to the varsity 40.

Harrington placed his kick outside on the three-yard line, this time proving that his first was not a fluke. The first freshman team re-entered the game. Here the third varsity backfield made the first touchdown. Tommy O'Brien, Shea, Ricci and Walter Kelley carried the ball.

The freshmen kicked off to the pony sophomore backfield, which had come on the field. Chesnolovich made a first down on his initial try. Ryder added nine. Reviemade nine more and then made a touchdown on the end of a 20-yard run. Score 39—0.

With the fifth team in play, Davis scored the last touchdown, making the final score 46-0.

Maureen Orcutt Four Up on Helen Hicks After 18 Holes

NEW YORK GIRLS BATTLE FOR CANADIAN WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Montreal, Sept. 20 (AP)—Maureen Orcutt of New York led Helen Hicks of Hewlett, N. Y., the defending titleholder, 4 up, at the end of the 18-hole morning round in the 36-hole final for the Canadian women's golf championship today.♦

Miss Orcutt outdrove Miss Hicks♦ on the first tee but a spectacular approach by the champion evened matters and both holed out in two putts for a half in par fives.

Miss Orcutt went one up at the second hole. Both players failed to reach the green on their tee shots. Miss Hicks being short and her opponent to the left. Miss Orcutt's chip was more accurate and she holed a ten-foot putt to take the hole with a three.

Miss Hicks overran the green on the 375-yard third hole with her second stroke. Miss Orcutt made a neat explosion shot out of the sand to get on in three to Miss Hicks' four, but the latter holed a 15-foot putt to get a half in fives when her opponent needed two putts.

Miss Hicks was outdriven at the 335-yard fourth and she just overran the green on her approach. Miss Orcutt's second slipped over the edge of the green into the rough. The Hewlet girl chipped safely within four feet of the pin. Miss Orcutt laid a near stymie after getting out of the rough, but Miss Hicks holed out for a four and squared the match.

Miss Orcutt in Rough

Miss Orcutt sliced her drive into the rough at the fifth but sent a long one out on the fairway. Miss Hicks hooked her second into the rough on the left and it cost her two strokes to get out onto the green. She laid Miss Orcutt a partial stymie, but the latter caromed off her opponent's ball into the hole for a win, going one up again.

At the 443-yard sixth Miss Orcutt's second shot, a brassie, brought her safely to the green while Miss Hicks took a third stroke to get on. Miss Orcutt's 30-putt came within two feet of the pin and she holed out for a birdie four to Miss Hicks' five to go two up.

The 180-yard seventh found both players on the green in one. Miss Hicks 15 feet away and her opponent about eight feet from the pin. Both required two putts for a half. Miss Hicks hooked her drive 50 yards off the line of play at the eighth hole, but used a brassie for a neat recovery onto the green.

Miss Orcutt, with two well-directed shots, was on in two and both holed out in two putts for fours.

The 367-yard ninth saw Miss Hicks safely on the green in two, while Miss Orcutt required an extra chip to bring the ball within three feet of the pin. Miss Hicks took two putts and Miss Orcutt one for a half, the latter remaining two up at the turn. The outgoing card:

Miss Hicks.. 5 4 5 4 6 5 3 4 4—40
Miss Orcutt.. 5 5 3 5 5 4 3 4 4—38

ASTOR DENIES CHALLENGE

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—The New York Herald-Tribune says Vincent Astor, commodore of the New York Yacht Club, has denied that a British syndicate has issued a challenge for the America's Cup.

Rumors such a challenge had been issued began to circulate soon after the fourth and final race in which the Enterprise successfully defended the cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V.

The Herald-Tribune quotes Commodore Astor as saying:

"I, myself, have heard nothing about the challenge and believe firmly that there is no ground to it. The report that I was bringing the challenge to the New York Yacht Club was absolutely false, and I have no idea how it was put in circulation.

"These rumors have been going on for the last three or four years, at one time or another, and I have not the faintest idea where anyone gets the information. The New York Yacht Club is in a most obliging and receptive mood and is willing to oblige any comer. There is simply none in sight, that is all."

MR. BOSTON By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston looks for great activity in the lightweight class during the indoor season.

"Members of the lightweight division are out to knock Al Singer from his lofty position at the head of the class," said Mr. Boston. "The fact Jimmy McLarnin was able to tip Singer over has led Jimmy Jacobs, Jackie Berg and several lesser lights to nurse similar ambitions.

Jack Conway

"The contenders won't consider the fact that McLarnin had a five-pound weight margin on Singer. They argue that Singer must have some glass in his chin in view of the fact that Ignacio Fernandez also boasts of a kayo victory over him.

"All this will create new interest in the lightweight division. It will cause the public to get steamed up over matches between the various lightweight contenders.

"I have always been strong for lightweight bouts. Lightweights are big enough to furnish heavy punching, yet not so big that they are clumsy when it comes to moving around the ring.

"Boston has been the home of some brilliant lightweights. Matty Baldwin, Kid Goodman, Dave Deshler, Eddie Murphy, Young Donahue, Joe Egan, Gilbert Gallant and Johnny Gallant all campaigned out of this city. Then there was Steve Kennedy of Lawrence, Young McDonough of Manchester, N. H. and Frankie Britt of New Bedford.

Suarez and Miller in Gotham Bout Oct. 3

"The lightweight bill will go popping off when Juste Suarez, Argentine champion, and Ray Miller of Chicago collide in a 10-round setto at the New York Garden on October 3. Suarez is the latest lightweight sensation. He came to this country after a long run of victories in South America. As many as 40,000 persons attended one of Juste's ring battles in Buenos Aires. He is even more popular with his countrymen than Louis Firpo was when the 'Wild Bull of the Pampas' first punched his way to fame and glory in the ring.

"Every time Suarez fights in New York a Buenos Aires newspaper has a radio hook-up with the ringside. Juste and all his pals tell all about it when the battle ends.

"The Queensboro Stadium was jammed to capacity the night Suarez knocked out Bruce Flowers. It is expected that the Garden will be filled when the colorful little warrior from the Argentine whirls into action against Miller.

Berg Deserves High Rating as Contender

"Don't overlook Jack Berg of England. I got a peek at this youngster the night he defeated Tony Canzoneri in the New York Garden. He is a small edition of the late Harry Greb. He tosses a million punches a minute and never seems to tire. He gave Canzoneri a sound shellacking.

"The New York commission was ready to force Singer to meet Berg, but the latter stepped aside so that Al could get his big money shot with McLarnin. Berg has been friendly with Singer outside of the ring and he didn't want to prevent the title holder from cashing in. Perhaps when McLarnin tipped Singer over, the latter wished Berg had blocked the match.

"If Suarez licks Miller, the Garden will try to sign Juste with Berg. The winner of this last match would be the logical opponent for Singer. It would, of course, be an outdoor attraction and so could not be staged before next summer.

Amateur Boxing Has Large Following

"Interest in the Saturday night amateur boxing shows of the St. Joseph's T. A. Society at Mechanics Building is further proof of the popularity of amateur boxing. Billy Cuddy will stage another tournament tonight. He reports a large number of entries have been received and that there will be plenty of action.

"Mel Sergi, Eddie Mack of the Argonne A. A. on Washington st. He tells me he will try to match the winner of the Gagnon-Fried-man bout, which takes place at the Arena on next Thursday night, with Jim Maloney.

"Maloney's next start will be against Bombo Chevalier of California at the Boston Garden on Oct. 7.

Keen Rivalry for Weekly Miniature Golf Prizes

Course managers at the 18 selected golf courses in the Boston Evening American Miniature Golf championship tournament expect plenty of activity at the courses today and tonight with great competition for the lowest weekly score.

All scores up to 10 o'clock on each course will be entered for the weekly prize awards which will be made on Monday night at 8:30 o'clock.

The winners will be announced in this column Monday.

All contestants playing after 10 o'clock tonight and tomorrow will have an opportunity to get in on next week's prizes.

The Tiny Tee courses at Wollaston and the Worrick Inn are prepared for some heavy playing over the week end as both are handy to the beaches.

Al Friedman, the popular heavyweight, played his first game of miniature golf, making a 46, on the Tiny Tee golf course at Roslindale last night. He was very interested and said it was great relaxation between training sessions for his coming battle with Jack Gagnon.

Percy Gilbert made a record score on the Tiny Tee course at Beach boulevard, Wollaston, with a 36. Par is 38.

Low Scores

At the Tiny Tee Golf Course, Brookline:

Richards, Kozeluh in Pro Tennis Finals

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 20 (AP)—For the third time in as many years the final round of the American professional lawn tennis championship found Vincent Richards of New York pitted against Karel Kozeluh, Czechoslovakian wizard, today. Richards won in 1928 and Kozeluh last year, but

BENEFIT TRACK MEET SUNDAY

Men and women track and field athletes in Greater Boston will gather at Russell Field, Cambridge, tomorrow afternoon to compete in a meet being staged for the benefit of the Columbus Day Nursery.

In the entry list can be found the names of some of the best known athletes of both sexes in this district.

The events for men are the 100 yards dash; 440 yards run; 880 yards run; mile run, six-mile run; running broad jump and running high jump. The six-mile run and the high jump carry N. E. A. A. A. U. championships.

The girls will compete in the 100 yard dash, high jump, putting the eight-pound shot; 50 yards dash for novices and baseball throw.

30,000 Fans Attend Night College Game

Pittsburgh Sept. 20 (INS)—Popularity of night college football was indicated today. More than 30,000 fans saw West Virginia defeat Duquesne eleven, 7 to 0, last night at Forbes Field.

Each team, playing its opener of the season, failed to show a sustained attack. The winning score came late in the second quarter after an intercepted pass on the 25-yard line. Parriott making the touchdown.

Mattapan-Milton Battle Tomorrow

The old time players of the Mattapan Town baseball team tomorrow will play the Milton City Club at Franklin Field at 3 p. m. Cy Rosenthal, former member of the Red Sox, is in charge of the game which is for the benefit of one of the regular Mattapan nine players who was injured in a recent game.

One-Man Team

Joe Hall, University of Florida athlete, competed in seven events in a track meet with the University of Havana last season.

GATE OF HEAVEN PLAYS SALEM

The Gate of Heaven football team of South Boston will open its 1930 season with the Salem Town Team at Buckley Stadium, Peabody tomorrow afternoon.

Coach Daley of the Gate of Heaven eleven has put in a few weeks of hard work with his squad and, because he has very fine material, is expecting a good season. Tom Houch his club will face the strongest semi-pro clubs in Greater Boston.

The Gate of Heaven lineup that faces Salem will be Burke, center; Lazzarus and Garrity, guards; McGowan and Fuchs, tackles; Byrnes and Splaine, ends; Donovan, quarter; Norris and Driscoll, halves and McGowan, fullback. Cronin at fullback and Tobin at right end will share the work with the starters. Reserves are Norton and Sullivan.

The game will start at 2:30.

Stanford Plays Today

Palo Alto, Cal., Sept. 20 (INS)—The Stanford University football squad faced its first test of the 1930 season today in a game with the West Coast army team.

Belcher-Wood Team Plays Hodders for Title Today

Virginia and Clark Hodder of Framingham, brother and sister combination, will play Mrs. D. M. Belcher and Leonard Wood of Winchester in the final of the annual state club pair mixed foursome champion at Charles River today.

The Hodders eliminated the defending champions in Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., and Raynor Gardiner of Kittansett by 1 up after a stirring struggle which found the Framingham pair 4 up after nine holes played in 37 strokes.

Mrs. Belcher and Wood continued their way to the final by defeating Eleanore Steinhice and Win Trowbridge of Plymouth, the winners of the qualifying medal.

Argonne Fans to Get N. Y. Returns

Followers of Jack Sharkey in Greater Boston will be given a round by round description of the Squire's progress in his bout with Vittorio Campolo next Thursday night at the first indoor show of the Argonne A. A. at the Arena.

Sergt. Eddie Mack has made arrangements for a direct wire from the New York Garden, where Sharkey meets the big Argentinian. The returns will be announced from ringside at the Arena.

Both fans are greatly interested in what Sharkey will show in his bout and Mack has gone to some expense to make arrangements.

While Sharkey is doing his stuff in Gotham, Jack Gagnon of Brighton and Al Friedman of Roslindale will be battling in the Arena ring for the Argonne A. A.

There will also be a list of good preliminary bouts which the sergeant is scheduling.

Louisville Plays Rochester in Series

Chicago, Sept. 20 (AP)—The surprising Colonels from Louisville, Ky., will represent the American Association in the "Little World Series" against Rochester of the International League, starting next Wednesday at Rochester.

Even though they lost to Indianapolis yesterday, the Colonels became 1930 champions of the Association, as the second place St. Paul Club dropped a game to Kansas City, last year's title winner.

Braddock K. O's Mercurio

DICK DANIELS WINS FROM GALLAGHER

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Jim Braddock, the elongated Jerseyman, whom Jack Dempsey once labelled as "the makings of the greatest heavyweight in the world," exploded four dynamic rights on the chin of Phil Mercurio of New York in one of the twin 10-rounders in the Boston Garden, last night, and Phillip went to sleep for the full 10 in the second round, after being dropped three times in the first.

In the other headline ten rounder Dick Daniels, the Minnesota collegian, gave Boston fans a peek at the best young fighter who has shoved his head over the local fistic horizon in many moons. Spotting the giant Marty Gallagher of Roxbury 22 pounds, the former tackle on Cupid Spear's eleven handed him a man-sized shellacking.

Daniels' feat was all the more meritorious when the fact is taken into consideration that Dick fought 10 terrific rounds with Al Fay in Chicago Wednesday night, and only arrived here yesterday morning after a long train ride.

When Daniels and Gallagher weighed in, Marty tipped the beam at 205 pounds, while Dick scaled only 183. Sam Carroll's protege also had a corresponding advantage in height and reach.

For three rounds it looked as if Gallagher's superior height, weight and reach would decide the issue. Then Referee Joe O'Connor stopped chewing gum long enough to "break" the pair and young Mister Daniels decided he was warmed up enough and threw the speed lever into the high. He was all over the Roxbury giant with a choice assortment of jabs, hooks and crosses. Daniels took the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth rounds and gained an even break in the 10th.

The Minnesota collegian uncovered a splendid repertoire of punches, using a regular Dempsey left hook to head and body and throwing over his right to head and heart with commendable speed and accuracy. His timing and judgment of distance were splendid and he showed coolness under fire and a ring generalship one seldom sees in a youngster of limited experience. His only weakness was in the cinches, but when Gallagher lays all over an opponent and the referee is so slow in breaking them as Joe O'Connor was during the early rounds last night, Marty is a hard man to fight.

Jim Exhibits Gunboat Smith's Pet Punch

The Braddock-Mercurio duel virtually was over four seconds after the opening bell, when Long Jim shot a short right to the jaw which added Phillip's name as well as rattled his molars. Phil never recovered from that first punch. Some of the experts as well as the fans thought Mercurio was doing a "bangup" but Phil was punch-drunk, that's all.

A few seconds after Jim's first right Braddock dropped Mercurio with an overhand right for a count of nine, sent him down again with another short right and just before the bell, dropped him for a third time with an overhand right that landed back of and under the ear—Gunboat Smith's old occipital punch.

They called it the "occipital punch" because it landed on the occipital bone. The fans refused to accept "occipital" and dubbed the Gunner's famous overhand right back of the ear the "hospital punch." Smith certainly sent enough men to the hospital with it.

Mercurio was likely about the knees and the cobwebs still were in his eyes when he came up for the second round. He was scared to death besides. Another right under the ear stretched him out for the full drone of the doleful decimal.

In the opening six-rounder, Albion Holden, the South Attleboro feather, won over Little Jack Dempsey of North End. Tommy Rawson, Jr., of East Boston, son of the Tech boxing coach, got the decision over Vic Marshall in another six. In an eight-rounder staged after the main go, Terry Mitchell of Somerville defeated "Ug" Gibson of Medford. The attendance was disappointing, there not being more than 3000 persons in the big arena.

Jack Conway Adds 2 More Victories to His List

Jack Conway, boxing editor of the Boston Evening American, picked both J. J. Braddock and Dick Daniels to win their bouts at the Boston Garden. They did.

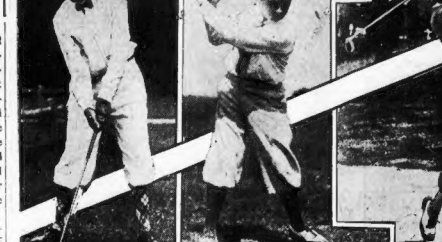
Horton Smith's Golf Lessons

Famous Young Missouri Professional Illustrates and Describes the Mechanics and Technique of Play



CONCENTRATION

Willie Macfarlane looks what he really is—a most masterly professor of golf. Like all good players, he is obviously concentrating in the address (Picture 1 above). And on what is he concentrating? Surely not about which side of his body should be in control, and still less about taking the club back slowly, etc., etc. Practice has made such details as much of a habit with him as breathing or walking. Macfarlane has a ball to hit to an approximately definite place, and that only is what he is concentrating upon.

Those who cram their golf lessons, and practice them but briefly, may believe they are concentrating during occasional play, but they are really deconcentrating with the brain madly scrambling to remember and execute all pointers concerning the grip, backswing, shoulders rotation, etc.

Beginners should first concentrate on getting the ball as close to its objective as possible while absorbing gradually the correct principles of play until the latter becomes a habit as with Macfarlane and other veteran players.

OBSERVING THE SWING

The study of good golf photographs, like carefully watching links experts in action, is of help to all who follow that game. If you can re-photograph in the mind clear pictures of the actual stances and swings of the golf masters it will help you approximate such details yourself.

The trouble with many such photographs is that they are posed, and thus one or more obvure but important action details may be missing. In fact, some such stilted poses may be downright misleading. The above study of Walter Hagen's backswing is posed, and differs from the action effort, in that the latter would be a trifle longer, and Walter's left heel would be a bit more off the ground. The arm and other details in the above are correct. "The Haig's" backswing is a beauty, and one can fix it in his mind as a model for like efforts.

A study of pictures and writings on golf indicates that the swing, so far as the game's masters are concerned, has not changed much in a quarter of a century, but there is undoubtedly more uniformity in correct swinging of late.

Another series by Horton Smith will appear on next Tuesday.

THAT "FINISH BENT"

Of course, that "finish bent" so clearly shown in Picture 3, is not exclusive with me. All good players complete their swings with a full follow-through, necessitating that bent posture. It is an acquired habit.

When I began to take up golf seriously as a boy at Springfield, Mo., and later at Joplin, I naturally tried to imitate the swings of the best players in that territory. I also read considerable of what was written on that subject, and also examined all available photos of such players as Bobby Jones (he is still my ideal), Walter Hagen, Tommy Armour and others. I did not slavishly try to duplicate any of them, but I did try to absorb, as far as possible, the correct principles of the swing as demonstrated by them, and put such principles into my own almost constant practice.

I did, and do, notice that many golfers of the mediocre type do not have that "finishing bent" so necessary in a correct follow-through. In demonstrating the latter, many champions pose for photographs bolt upright. That may be more artistic to the eye, but it is not helpful in picturing the true form of the sound golf swing. Don't forget that "finishing bent!" That is most important.

ST. JOE PURE SHOW TONIGHT

St. Joseph's T. A. S. will stage the second of its series of annual amateur tournaments at Mechanics Building, tonight. The first bout, because of the large entry list, will start at 7:30 so that the last bout can get on before closing time.

Six open classes are carded, the 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and light heavyweight divisions. The latter two classes, because of the ability of the entries, are expected to furnish the feature fighting.

Among the 135-pounders are Louis Lavargna, Malden; George Pinto, East Boston; Luke Record, Charlestown; Robert Campbell, Brookline; Ollie White, Roxbury; Jack Bell, Belmont; Eddie Rossi, Everett; Johnny Masic, Taunton; Ralph Volpe, Milford; Dean Cross, Milford; John Fazio, Boston; Joe Perry, East Boston; Joe Nelson, Wakefield; Moppy Preuil, Taunton; Vic Mandell, Boston, and Jack Fitzgerald, Newton. Fourteen will battle for honors in the 147. They are Jack Dunbar, Mattapan; Edward Flaherty, Woburn; Tony Silvia, Taunton; Al Fink, Roxbury; Frank Magno, Boston; Cornelius O'Leary, Somerville; Joe Sheldon, Newton; Francis Daniels, Milford; Felix Proul, Taunton; Walter Rochville, Medford; Chick Cobb, Mattapan; Jim Santo, Boston; Con O'Leary, Somerville.

The 160 pounders are Bill Adams, Salem; Jack Shea, Boston; Wesley LeBert, Medford; Bill Edmonds, Cambridge; Jim Canney, Campello; Pete Cline, Somerville; Stanley Koss, Taunton, and Earl Williamson, East Braintree.

Unknown Golfer Is Six Under Par

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 20 (INS)—Ralph Gudahl of Dallas, Texas, a virtually unknown golfer, today paced the field in the $10,000 St. Louis open golf tournament as the second day's play began. Gudahl shot a 68 yesterday, six under par.

Tommy Armour of Detroit and Harry Cooper of Chicago were second.

Damrosch Tells of Plans for Fall Broadcasts to Start Oct. 10

PLANS for the programs Walter Damrosch has arranged for this season's Music Appreciation Hour have been announced by the NBC, under whose auspices the concerts will be held beginning Oct. 10.

In view of the fact that there have been numerous requests from teachers that some of the compositions be repeated, Mr. Damrosch has announced that the final concert in Series A, B and C will be a review program made up entirely of works that have been given earlier in the series.

Friday mornings at 11 o'clock is the time set aside for these broadcasts. Programs in series A will follow the same general plan as those given last season. Since the children listening to the series are all beginners they will first be introduced to the orchestra and shown the distinguishing characteristics of the various instruments. In series B emphasis will be placed on the different rhythms and tempos in music. This is supplemented by programs showing the various moods and ideas that music can express. Series C deals mainly with the various forms which the composers have used in their works.

The course outlined for series D, which is for high schools and colleges, represents a complete innovation. The programs cover a chronological series of the orchestral composers, extending from Bach to Stravinsky. Mr. Damrosch has chosen these composers as being most typical of their various periods and as having exercised exceptional influence on the development of orchestral music and the orchestra. The programs include works that are rarely heard.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

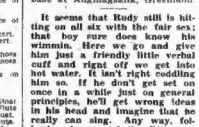
According to M. H. Aylesworth, president of NBC, it will cost approximately ten million dollars to provide talent for the sponsored and sustaining programs which will be broadcast over the National Broadcasting Company networks during the year of 1931. And this is not the major cost in bringing programs to the radio audience, either. He states that the cost of operation, exclusive of fees paid to entertainers, will reach twenty million dollars.

Just imagine, thirty million dollars for broadcasting entertainment by one company for one short year. Count it gentlemen, THIRTY MILLION! Well, what about it. It's nothing out of my pocket," says you. "Don't make us laugh," says we.

An interesting bit of information comes from the Cable News Bureau, which informs us that "the new Vatican station will use power of 12 kilowatts and will operate on 19.84 and 50.26 meters. The Pope will speak from a studio within his own apartments. The station is nearly ready for operation."

For those who know code, another short wave station of tremendous interest will soon be available under most favorable conditions. The British Arctic expedition will transmit on call GKN on 20.97 meters, from the base at Angmagssalik, Greenland.

It seems that Rudy still is hitting on all six with the fair sex; that boy sure does know his stimmin. Here we go and send him just a friendly little verbal cuff and right off we get into hot water. It isn't right meddling him so. If he don't get set on once in a while just on general principles, he'll get wrong ideas in his head and imagine that he really can sing. Any way, following is one of the little ear twisters we received for being naughty:



Dear Sir: Apropos of your oft-repeated adjective for Rudy Vallee, "weak-voiced," I would like to ask you if you have ever heard the story of the college sophomore who, on being asked if he intended to try for the glee-club, replied modestly, "I don't sing well, but I sing loud!" Rudy Vallee may not sing loud, does not sing loud (ly), but he does sing well, in the opinion of many. Yours truly,

A Rudy Vallee Enthusiast.

A very popular and versatile announcer has just been added to the staff of the Shepard Stores station WNAC. He is Heward J. (Ben) Butler, former actor and more recently announcer at Station WEAF. Mr. Butler studied for Annapolis Academy, but abanuoned the idea for the stage serving several seasons with Morris Gest. We believe that Ben's large radio audience of WNAC will be greatly pleased with the work of this new member.

Space will not permit the recounting of all the attractive features which will make of this year's radio show at the Boston Garden the most interesting and spectacular of any such expositions ever held in this city, sheiks it. Fairbanks, director, who was the father of the first radio show in the world 10 years ago, states that not in any city in the country will this exposition be surpassed. Vast work to shall devote more space to the event, which runs from September 29 to October 4.

Coming out of the ether . . . "Wallace Silveramiths" make their bow tonight over WNAC at 8:45. The orchestra under the direction of Jerry Salter will feature melodies of 1835 . . . Jesse Crawford says goodbye to summer in his 'musical way tonight over WNAC at 10:30. Among the numbers he will play is Tosti's "Goodbye," a composition usually gargled by sopranos much to the annoyance of the listeners. We shall hear what "The Poet of the Organ" does to it . . . Wm. A. Flagg's four-act play, "The Angel of the Trail," a tale of early life in California, will be broadcast during Hank Simmons' Show Boat presentation . . . The Cathedral of the Underworld, symbol of hope and refuge of the wrecks, resumes the air Over WHDH tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. This program originating in the heart of Chinatown will be presented. It is a human interest broadcast describing the lights, shadows and colorings of a great metropolis . . . Guest artist on the Voice of Surprise Party of tonight is Ben Alley, tenor. Uncle Henry Burbig will be among those present. WNAC at 7:30 . . . Duke Ellington has changed allegiance. He and his band have departed from CBS and are now a regular feature of NBC. All very well for Duke and NBC, but not an encouraging fact for Ellington listeners of Boston as no local station takes the program now . . . Over WBZA from 8:30 to 9 tonight the dinner to Mayor Salter of Boston, England, will be broadcast.

RADIO Personalities

SAM HERMAN, NBC xylophonist, is credited with 150 hours of flying. . . . MURRAY KELLNER, director of the Maxwell House Orchestra, has been an orchestra director since he was 16 years old. . . . NORMAN BROKENSHIRE and DAVID ROSS are two of the pioneer announcers whose careers date back to the time when announcers cloaked their identities behind a set of initials. . . . RICO CATHAM, the "Black Brewster" of "Sig Guns," has played stock in every state in the union, and was associated with Otis Skinner, George Jessel, Walter Hampden and Dennis King. . . . A man in New Zealand writes and tells us he heard a local radio from his country and an orchestra was playing "Just a Little Closer." The Band of a Thousand Melodies often present a whole program without the use of orchestral music. . . . EDWIN FRANKO GOLDMAN claims he will use the city Key Mayor Curley presented him as a baton. . . . There is a fourth LOMBARDO brother, VICTOR, who practices his music at all hours a day.

Through-Way Rule to Be Enforced

Motorists who ignore the stop signals when entering through ways, such as Commonwealth and Blue Hill avenues, will be summoned into court in the future, as a result of a general order sent last night to all stations by Commissioner Hultman.

Traffic experts, who, when the system was installed, believed that it would eliminate accidents, have been disappointed at the failure of motorists to obey the regulations.

Jack Kearns Sues to Annul Marriage

Chicago, Sept. 20 (US)—Jack Kearns, Jack Dempsey's former manager, has sued for annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Lyga Kearns, which he asserted had been contracted under New York's "trick" marriage laws.

He asked release also from the agreement under which he has paid Mrs. Kearns $500 a month, except for recent defaults.

BEAL AND 3 TO GO TO PRISON

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—The New York Times says four of seven Communists under long prison sentences in North Carolina in connection with the Gastonia textile strike, have arranged to surrender at Charlotte, N. C., before September 29 to avoid bail forfeiture.

The men were convicted of slaying Chief of Police C. F. Aderholt and disappeared shortly after the convictions were upheld on August 20 by the North Carolina Supreme Court. They are at liberty in bail totaling $30,000.

Two of the men who plan to give up are Fred Edwin Beal of Lawrence and K. Y. Hendricks, who are said to have returned to the United States recently from Soviet Russia. Beal is under a 17 to 20 year sentence and Hendricks one of five to seven years.

Roseland Ballroom Opens This Evening

Roseland Ballroom, at Massachusetts ave., and Norway st., will open for the season this evening, under the direction of Victor F. Pini, manager of Rainbow Gardens, at Walpole on the post road to Providence.

Via Vincent

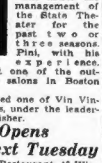
Roseland has been under the management of the State Theater for the past two or three seasons. Pini, with his long experience, should make it one of the outstanding dance salons in Boston this season.

He has engaged one of Vin Vincents orchestras, under the leadership of Earl Fisher.

Paradise Opens Next Tuesday

The Paradise Restaurant, 46 Winchester st., Chinese and American restaurant opens next Tuesday.

Waller Wong, manager, and Harry Quan, president, are reported to have a number of restaurants and have spared no expense in providing for comfort, service, cuisine and atmosphere. Perley Breed and his recording orchestra will appear nightly.



Perley Breed

Delmonico Inn Business Booming

Sam Zimbaldi, manager of the Delmonico Inn, Walpole, on the Providence road, reports a full house each evening. Mr. Zimbaldi offers an excellent chicken, duck and steak dinner at reasonable prices. There is no cover charge at the inn. Music is played by Gus Lepera and his Music Masters, recently from New York.

Gas Executives to Meet Here Sept. 26

Executives prominent in the gas industry will meet in Boston, Sept. 26 and 27, for the quarterly meeting of the operating division of the New England Gas Association at the Hotel Statler.

Arthur S. Hall is chairman of the meeting. H. Vittinghoff, president of the association, and C. D. Willard, executive secretary, will speak.

Dine and Dance

Camille Johnson at Rainbow Garden

Victor F. Pini, manager of Rainbow Gardens, has closed negotiations for Miss Camille Johnson—a radio entertainer and star, to appear as a future festival night to be held at Rainbow Gardens.

Camille Johnson

Miss Johnson has a beautiful lyric soprano voice, and has entertained radio audiences for the past six months. Miss Johnson is a Hungarian parentage and her father is identified in the hotel business here. They make their home on 17 Wade st., in the Chestnut Hill district. She will feature in her early broadcast as the Rainbow Gardens festivities one of the hits in last spring's production of the "Vincent Club Virtues," composed by John L. Batchelder, jr., son of the coal dealer.

Lucky Girl

their apartment frequently, but she didn't mind. After all, Chester was his son.

"Why don't you have your own people visit here oftener?" Farnsworth urged her, feeling a little guilty perhaps, because he went so often to his son's.

That hurt. Because they wouldn't come.

"Now you don't want your family all over the place," Mary Paige would say. "You've been rid above you, as the saying is, and I'm not the one to drag you down. I wouldn't know how to talk to those society people and—"

"But, ma," Cathie explained, over and over. "I'm all alone most of the time and anyway, they're not worth your little finger—all of them put together! Ma, I'm just the same girl. Having money hasn't made me different. Can't you see how I want you? Ma, please, please, come!"

Excuses Found

"Well, we'll see. Maybe when I get me a new hat."

"It doesn't matter about your hat! But we'll get a new one today. We will just get in the car."

"Now, Cathie, don't rush me. I'll come, all in good time!"

All in good time, and there it rested, Mary Paige never set foot in Cathie's house. Neither did Ruth. Angered by her mother's attitude, perhaps still suffering from the pangs of jealousy that she felt from the time Cathie first announced her engagement and married first . . . the younger sister . . . it haven't the least desire to play the poor relation!" she said bitterly, and nothing that Cathie could say would change her.

So it was Jean who did all the family visiting, and even that stopped. Mr. Farnsworth sent her to be t
